London Gives Recognition To Chinese Red Regime

London, Jan. 6 (AP).—Britain today recognized the Communist conquest of China in a diplomatic move that split the Asiatic front of the West's Big Three.

The British Labor Government accepted Mao Tze-tung's Peiping regime as the government, in law as well as in fact, of the world's most populous country, a nation of 460 million.

Three smaller nations—Denmark, Norway and Ceylon—immediately followed Britain's lead.

Parisian diplomats said France will not recognize Mao "in the near future." She will wait at least until Britain accepts officially the French-sponsored Bao Dai government of Viet Nam, Indo-Chinese neighbor of China, these informants said.

Dr. Cheng Tien-hsi, Chiang Kai-shek's ambassador to London, termed the British action a knockout blow to Nationalist China, "not from her foes but from her friends and former allies." He said it was "direct intervention in the Chinese civil war on the side of the Communists."

Taipei, the capital of Chiang's Formosa redoubt, was plunged into gloom by these developments and President Truman's decision Thursday to keep American hands off the island. The Nationalist foreign minister, George Yeh, said the British step compromised "every traditional idea of freedom held by the British people."

Recognition of China Reds Angers Many

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

Officials here were calm but some influential members of Congress were angry yesterday over the British recognition of Communist China.

The British had forecast their decision for so long that the State Department was fully prepared for it, and the outcry on Capitol Hill was less shrill than had been expected.

The State Department insisted that "the governments with whom we have been in consultation"—namely the British, French, Indian and others—"all seem to have the same ultimate objective of a stable, independent China free of foreign domination." This was clearly an attempt to counteract the idea that the British recognition was a major breach between British and American policy in the Far East.

"The decision by a government on whether to withhold or grant recognition to a new government," said the State Department statement, "is an exercise of a

Flying Arrow Quits Hongkong For Shanghai

Aboard American Freighter Flying Arrow, Jan. 7 (Saturday) (AP).—This 14,000-ton cargo ship sailed shortly after midnight this morning for Red Shanghai, whose waters the Chinese Nationalists claim to have mined.

Capt. David Jones of Chicago, the 31-year-old skipper, said he expected to reach the mouth of the Yangtze sometime Monday morning (Sunday United States time).

While he did not appear perturbed at the sort of reception which may be expected from the blockading Nationalists, there were precautions.

Various sections of the midship house were barricaded with 250 bales of cotton. Officers said the bales could stop 3-inch shells.

On board were an American couple (whose names were withheld) and 10 other foreigners who formerly lived in Shanghai and now are returning.

Pact Invoked To End Feuds In Caribbean

By The Associated Press

The American Republics yesterday put the Rio mutual defense treaty in motion in an attempt to stop feuding in the Caribbean.

The action came on appeals by Haiti and the Dominican Republic. But the stage was set to stretch the investigation to cover several attempts to overthrow governments and launch invasions.

The appeals were laid before the Council of the Organization of American States, which debated four hours and set up a fact-finding committee to investigate.

The council's special session was called to hear Haiti's complaint that she was the victim of a Dominican invasion plot. Haiti asked that the Rio Treaty be invoked against her neighbor republic.

Then in a surprise move, the Dominican Republic also asked that the treaty be invoked, contending that it has been the victim of aggression.

This Dominican move opened the way to permit a broadened investigation.

Under the treaty, which provides machinery for peaceful settlement of disputes, the council called a meeting of the 21 American Foreign Ministers, but set no date. Meantime, the council took on powers to deal with the situation temporarily. This permits it to try to solve the problems without bringing the Foreign Ministers together unless this is necessary.

Portsmouth, Va., Jan. 6 (AP).—It just doesn't pay to trade with those Damyankees.

Mrs. Roosevelt Tells Luncheon Secret Wish: To Write a Novel

By Lee Grove
Post Reporter

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, speaking at The Washington Post Book and Author Luncheon yesterday, confessed to a secret ambition.

"What I would really like to do," she said in a discussion of her two-volume autobiography, "is write a novel."

"I always thought that would be great fun, because then you could write about fictitious people, but tell the truth about a lot of real people."

Someday, she said, "I would like to write a really frivolous book."

Mrs. Roosevelt addressed an audience of 965—an all-time record for Post luncheons. Among those present was Secretary of the Interior Oscar L. Chapman.

Speaking in the Hotel Statler with Mrs. Roosevelt were Morton Thompson, author of "The Cry and the Covenant," and Capt. Walter Karig, U. S. N., whose latest book is "Victory in the Pacific."

Introducing Mrs. Roosevelt, Philip L. Graham, publisher of The Post, recalled news commentator Ed Murrow's words, "we have known her as the First Lady of the land, and now we know her as the First Lady of the World."

Mrs. Roosevelt said she always felt "a little bit pretentious" in the role of author.

"I am very much more at home writing a column," she said, "and my husband always said that was the lowest form of journalism."

The first volume of her autobiography, "This Is My Story," was easy to write, she said, "because it dealt largely with myself and the years were not crowded.

"But the second volume, 'This I Remember,' was a much more difficult task," she said, "and a much slower one than I counted o ."

In writing her autobiography, Mrs. Roosevelt said she was motivated by the thought it might be "of help to the men who will write the history of the period," in giving "certain lights on things, and perhaps people, that perhaps no one else had seen quite the same way."

Saying she hoped her work would provide a little more understanding of the personal side of officials and their families, she added they lived "in gold fish bowls." "You don't elect a Presi-

Cut in New Tax In Alexandria Is Foreseen

Alexandria Mayor Franklin P. Backus promised yesterday the 10 percent tax on public utility bills will be cut in half—putting the city $119,678 in the hole in 1950.

City Manager W. Guy Ancell, he revealed, has promised to try to overcome the deficit by curtailing costs. If he can't, he will ask City Council to make additional revenue available, Backus said.

The mayor reported that the council is split, 4 to 3, on the knotty problem posed by the 1950 budget. The four-man majority, which he heads, will push the utility tax cut through at Tuesday's council meeting, he said.

It will also vote a $27,821 slash in the record 1950 budget of $4,312,312 adopted last Saturday, he announced.

The 10 percent utility tax was to have raised an estimated $375,000. Because of stiff opposition to it voiced by individual citizens and civic groups, council has met several times in closed session recently.

Backus said the council is split on whether the tax shall remain or be tossed out. Favoring retention—but at 5 percent—are the mayor and Albert A. Smoot, R. Samuel Luckett and James M. Duncan, jr. Vigorously opposed are Leroy S.

Mrs. Truman, Women's Group, Mum on Canceled Tea Date

Why isn't Mrs. Truman having tea at the University Women's Club, Inc., on January 16?

She was invited. She accepted. It was in the papers.

The answer is simple. The University Women's Club, Inc., withdrew the invitation on Wednesday.

Well, why did the University Women's Club, Inc., withdraw the invitation?

Dr. Elisabeth Conrad, club president, said, "Any statement on that will have to come from the White House."

Mrs. Edith B. Helm, Mrs. Truman's social secretary, said "Any statement on that will have to come from the club."

Dr. Conrad was contacted again.

"I will say this," she said pleasantly. "Mrs. Truman and Mrs. Helm are always very cordial to us and anything they do is just fine."

She added, also, that the club is going to have a business meeting next Monday. "And there may be something interesting then."

The University Women's Club, Inc., seceded from the Washington Branch, American Association of University Women after a dispute involving the admission of Mrs. Mary Church Terrell, well known Negro leader.

Dr. Conrad, leader of the dissenters, who fought against Mrs. Terrell's admission, also led the seceders out of a national convention of the American Association of University Women in Seattle, last June.

The group later changed its name to University Women's Club, Inc., and its headquarters from the national clubhouse at 1634 I st. nw. to 1515 New Hampshire ave. nw.

12 North Atlantic Pact Nations Approve Master Defense Plan

The 12 governments that signed the North Atlantic treaty approved a master plan yesterday outlining how each would help the joint defense of all in case of a Soviet attack.

The secret plan, worked out by the military commanders, has been reported to give the United States the main responsibility for long-range bombing and for maintenance of the ocean lanes in case of war. France would be primarily responsible for ground defense, Britain for fast fighter protection and for naval defense of the narrow seas.

Approval of the plan came in a 40-minute meeting of the North Atlantic Council, the supreme body of the treaty organization. Secretary Acheson presided, and the Washington envoys of the other 11 countries represented their governments.

A brief communique said simply that the recommendations in the new plan "embody the principles of self-help and mutual aid, and will provide the basis for the common defense of the parties."

President Truman must approve the plan before releasing 900 million dollars appropriated last year for military aid to eight of the treaty signers.

Lucas Takes Coal Demand To Steelman

Senate Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas informed the White House yesterday that a serious coal crisis is developing as a result of the three-day work week imposed on the coal industry by John L. Lewis.

Lucas laid his views before Presidential Assistant John R. Steelman, who handles labor matters for President Truman. He said Steelman promised to "lay all the facts" before the President today.

May Take It to Floor

"I further advised Mr. Steelman that unless the operators and John L. Lewis reached some agreement whereby the miners would return to work on a five-day week basis, I would be constrained to take the floor of the United States Senate and protest as vigorously as I know how against the continuation of these conditions," he said in a statement.

Mr. Truman has said he planned no intervention in the coal situation until it became an "emergency." Senator Lucas is the first administration figure to picture the dispute and its effects in such strong language.

Earlier yesterday there were demands from Republicans that Mr. Truman use the Taft-Hartley emergency strike provisions to end the three-day week and that congressional committees investigate Lewis' "labor monopoly."

Joining in the attack were Senator William E. Jenner (R., Ind.), and Representatives Ralph E. Church (R., Ill.) and Lawrence H. Smith (R., Wis.). Church demanded an inquiry by the House Labor Committee.

NLRB Goes to Court

Meantime, the National Labor Relations Board asked the United States Circuit Court of Appeals to force Lewis to obey a board order handed down in the 1948 coal contract dispute. The order involved Lewis' strike against the so-called "captive" coal mines.

Last summer, the board found the UMW guilty of violating the Taft-Hartley Act by illegally insisting on a union shop contract with the "captive" mines, operated by the big steel mills. The union appealed the NLRB's cease-and-desist order, and said that the board's decision was purely academic since the contract involved already had expired.

Enforcement Asked

Yesterday, the NLRB insisted that its restraining order referred not only to the 1948 contracts, but to any similar contracts which John L. and the UMW made or may make in the future. The NLRB then asked the court to enforce the restraining order.

The appeals court's decision is almost sure to be taken to the U. S. Supreme Court either by the union or by the Government.

Eight large Ohio coal producers, acting under a State law, yesterday sued John L. and the UMW for 10 million dollars in damages as a result of losses due to strikes and three-day workweeks in 1949. They also asked the courts to end the three-day week in Ohio.

Other Developments

Other coal developments yesterday:

The Nation's railroads plan to sidetrack 654 steam-locomotive passenger trains Sunday midnight as a result of a coal conservation order by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Mayor Thomas A. Burke, of Cleveland, challenged statements of retail coal dealers that his city faced an acute coal shortage within the week.

The three-million-dollar smokeless fuel Disco plant of Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Co. said it would probably close within 10 days because of the lack of coal, idling 150 workers.

Congress Is Told Future Is Rosy if Investment Decline Can Be Reversed

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday told the American people they can have unparalleled prosperity if the present trend of declining business investment is reversed.

Anxiety over the falling rate of plant expansion is mingled with bright hopes for the future in the annual report of the Council of Economic Advisers and in the President's message transmitting it to Congress.

The annual review portrays a Nation ready, willing and able, through the expansive forces within it, to boost its national output by 50 billion dollars in the next five years, to a total national production of 300 billion dollars or better. It would mean 64 million jobs, and a gain of $1000 annual income per average family—to buy more things that business can produce.

This is no "fanciful" prospect, Mr. Truman said. It can come about through the yearly gain in productivity that we are entitled to expect from the annual 2½ percent increase during the past 60 years.

Planning for Gain Urged

Count on that increase and plan for it, the President told business and labor and the Congress, and it will come to pass. But it is dependent on using a higher proportion of our available resources—factories and labor force—than is now the case.

The President tacitly admitted that he had no new tricks up his sleeve by which Government could help to achieve the higher level of economic activity of which the Nation is capable.

There were no surprises in his list of specific economic recommendations to Congress, and none had been expected or appeared to be called for. Of 12 recommendations, only two were new and these were relatively technical. The rest were restatements of measures already urged:

Some tax revisions to remove inequities and yield a moderate increase in revenue (details to be specified in a special tax message), the Brannan Plan for agriculture, the new housing program for middle-income families, establishment of valley authorities and the St. Lawrence project. Federal aid to education and local medical services, extension and liberalization of social security, extension of

'Start' of Campbell Operation Admitted to Police by Myers

Ralph Willard Myers, 44-year-old window-shade salesman, was in District Jail last night under charge of performing a fatal abortion on pretty, 19-year-old Mrs. Nina Cogar Campbell, after admitting to police that he "had started" to perform the operation.

The body of the mother of two young children was found at 4 p. m. Thursday in the apartment of Myers' "girl friend," Miss Ruth Childs, 34, at 1321 Fairmont st. nw. It was savagely beaten and bruised, but a coroner's autopsy showed the abortion caused her death.

Miss Childs was suspended yesterday from Children's Hospital, where she was director of nursing education, pending completion of an investigation into the death of Mrs. Campbell.

Myers was arraigned yesterday before U. S. Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence, and bond of $20,000 was set. Commissioner Lawrence continued the case to January 18 to permit him to retain an attorney.

Through yesterday, police work-

D. C. Melts in Record Warmth, Cold and Flood Afflict Nation

Washington was promised "relief" today from its record-breaking three-day "heat wave."

The mercury steamed up to 72 degrees at 2:55 p. m. yesterday—breaking a record for the third straight day—but the Weather Bureau said the high temperature today will be in the 40s.

The forecast calls for showers today, ending in the early morning, and clearing and colder weather tonight. Sunday is expected to be fair and moderately cold.

Yesterday's 72 toppled the mark for the warmest January 6 in the records of the Weather Bureau. The previous record was 65, set in 1946. It was only five degrees short of the all-time January high of 77 set on January 15, 1932.

It was the warmest first week of January in the history of the Weather Bureau and the hottest day Washington has experienced since last November 11.

The normal high for January 6 is 42 degrees—just 30 degrees cooler than yesterday.

Sleet and freezing rain created new hazards and slowed relief for hundreds of homeless or heatless families in Midwest flood areas, and left three dead.

Four hours of freezing rain fell to add to the woes of Memphis, Tenn., already crippled by its worst ice storm in 17 years. All public utilities, including transportation, were severely curtailed.

A heavy fog blanketed New York City, shutting down the International airport at Idlewild and causing cancellation of many domestic flights at LaGuardia Field.

Three nights of freezing temperatures in the Salt River Valley of Arizona have resulted in an estimated citrus crop loss of 5 million dollars.

A slow warming trend was seen in Southern California after three nights of below-freezing temperatures which kept citrus growers busy at their smudge pots.

Cold weather in Texas was blamed for five deaths in two days, and ice storms caused two deaths in Arkansas.

And there were sub-zero readings again in Minnesota, the eastern Dakotas, northern Wisconsin and northern Iowa. Lows included 21 below at Pembina and Grand Forks, N. D.

Internationally there were such contrasting weather conditions as these:

The temperature dropped to 40 degrees below zero in Hell—Hell, Norway, that is.

And Sydney, Australia, reported three persons dead and 64 prostrated in Sydney's worst midsummer heat wave in four years. The temperature hit 102 in Sydney yesterday.

Miss Franklin Begs to Be Let Off on Subpena

Bernice Franklin came to the end of her rope yesterday after 10 months, 12 subpenas and 40 interviews as the Government's star gambling witness.

"Sick and tired and broke," she filed a motion in District Court to quash the latest subpena, to testify in a gambling case Monday.

After living out of wedlock with indicted gambler Attilio Acalotti and helping him in his business, the pretty red-head became disgusted last February and offered to turn state's evidence.

Since then she has testified before the special gambling grand jury. She worked for one month with the Justice Department after 36 men were arrested in eight simultaneous raids under the direction of United States Attorney George Morris Fay on March 25. She was subpenaed to report to Fay each Monday all summer. She has been under almost constant subpena since then. She was deserted by her former friends. She Dayton, Ohio, Jan. 7 (Saturday) (AP).—A general alarm fire in the heart of downtown Dayton still raged out of control early today. Damage already was unofficially estimated at more than half a million dollars.

Dancing-Girl Bequest Absurd, Irate Egyptian Embassy Says

The Egyptian Embassy yesterday labeled as "an absurd and purposely malicious lie" the story that a Washington artist and his brother have "inherited" four dancing girls as part of their uncle's estate in Egypt.

George Janus, 8415 Lynwood pl., Chevy Chase, Md., heir with his brother to one third of the huge estate, said last night he was inclined to agree with the Egyptian Embassy.

Janus, who is with the Advertising Art Studio, Inc., in The Washington Post building, said he talked to his brother, Christopher, briefly on the phone yesterday.

He said Christopher saw the girls "on a trip over there a few months ago, but that doesn't mean we are inheriting them."

"There's no such thing as slavery in Egypt, you don't inherit dancing girls there, and you don't buy and sell people there," he added.

While perhaps "amusing to some readers in this country," A. M. Ramadan, Egyptian press counselor here, said the whole thing should be recognized by anyone who knows Egypt as "fantastically untrue." He pointed out that Egypt abolished slavery in all its forms in 1870.

Prince to Marry Cantacuzene Kin In London Jan. 26

London, Jan. 6 (AP).—A beautiful British girl, whose great-great-grandfather was President Ulysses S. Grant, and a Russian prince who sells rayon, will be married here January 26, it was announced today.

The couple are distant cousins, both coming from the house of Cantacuzene, dating back to 1342.

She is slim, grey-eyed Barbara Hanbury-Williams, 19, daughter of Sir John Goldbrook Hanbury-Williams, rayon tycoon and Bank of England director who was knighted by King George VI in this week's New Year's honors list.

The bridegroom is tall, dark and handsome Prince Michael Cantacuzene, 35, sales manager of a French rayon firm.

Miss Hanbury-Williams' mother was the former Russian Princess Zenaida Cantacuzene, granddaughter of a son of General Grant.

Lustron Sends RFC Plan to Reorganize

To Solve Slump

Farm Export Study Plan Is Adopted

An 8-point program for continuing study of America's farm export problems was adopted by the new 14-member Foreign Trade Policy Advisory Committee of the Office of Foreign Agriculture Relations yesterday.

At the closing session of the two-day meeting, a statement of the group's plans was sent to Agriculture Secretary Charles F. Brannan.

The committee, set up to recommend Government policy to meet expected large slumps in this country's agricultural exports, called upon the Agriculture Department for detailed reports on all phases of agriculture.

To Study Them 60 Days

These reports will be distributed among the 14 members for a 60-day study. The committee has been called by its chairman, Edward J. Grimes, vice president of Cargill, Inc., of Minneapolis, to meet in Washington again March 17-18.

Among the subjects which were considered in the two-day meeting, and upon which the committee expects to report in March, are:

1. Policies on agricultural exports, including such proposals as the International Commodity Clearing House, general agreements on tariffs and trade, and price supports.

Policies On Imports

2. Policies in regard to imports, such as changes in tariffs, quotas, currency regulations, State trading and other restrictions.

3. The department's policy of interchange of information, technicians and materials with other countries, particularly as to those crops of which this country has a surplus.

The committee was informed of the vast sum now invested by Commodity Credit Corporation in the price-support program. On October 31, this reached $3,148,000,000, Administrator Ralph S. Trigg revealed.

Trigg also told the committee CCC plans to ask Congress for additional borrowing authority of 2 billion dollars to carry on the price-support programs.

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

The Lustron Corp. yesterday submitted to the Reconstruction Finance Corp. a reorganization plan designed to forestall foreclosure on 22 million dollars of RFC loans.

Carl G. Strandlund, president of Lustron, arrived here in the morning with the supposed intention of meeting a January 6 deadline with a proposal for "getting the company on its feet." Although Strandlund had no appointment with RFC officials, he was expected to call during the day. Instead, slightly more than an hour before the close of business, a messenger arrived with a letter "containing a proposal."

While Strandlund would not talk with reporters, an assistant, W. D. Pearce, said details of the proposal could not be disclosed until RFC had time to digest them. An RFC spokesman, in turn, said the agency could not comment on the proposal because it had not been studied and added there would be no action before Monday "and probably it will be later than that."

Lustron is a corporation formed by Strandlund, with $1000 of his own and RFC loans totaling 37½ million dollars to build prefabricated houses. The Chicago firm was organized in 1946 with a goal of 100 steel houses a day, to be built in the former Curtis-Wright plant at Columbus, Ohio, and to sell for $7000 each.

As it turned out, the early Lustron houses, which sold wholesale for $6000, came to $9000 or $12,000 each by the time shipping costs, dealers' profits, cost of the lot and the like were added. Under present conditions, production has averaged about 20 houses a day and Lustron's cost has been $7000 to $16,000 a house.

The Lustron loan has been the subject of one congressional investigation and the target of threats of several others. As the Government's first peacetime venture, on so large a scale, into furnishing capital for private venture, it has been a natural subject for political needling.

Last August Strandlund said he intended to seek a new RFC loan early this month and denied that Lustron was in default on its current debt. But Harvey J. Gunderson, RFC director, said the company was "in default on its loans, and we can't wait much longer."

Bus Boundary Briefs Protest Union Claims

The AB & W bus company and the State of Virginia yesterday said only the courts may decide whether the State has authority to operate AB & W buses over the line between Virginia and the District.

In separate briefs filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission, they asked the ICC to dismiss a complaint by the AB & W employes' union. The complaint challenged the right of the State to run AB & W buses into the District.

Supporting its original complaint in a third brief filed with the ICC yesterday, the union said the State is violating the Interstate Commerce Act and is exceeding its authority.

Through its State Corporation Commission, the State has been operating the bus company's lines since last July 21, the deadline set for a strike by the union, Local 1131, Association of Street Railway and Motor Coach Employes (AFL).

The action was taken under Virginia's antistrike law, which allows the Governor to take over public utilities whose employes strike or threaten to strike.

Company and State yesterday declared the union has not shown in its complaint that any damage has been done to the bus service, to the complainants, or to the general public by the State operation.

The union argued in its brief, among other things, that the State is "usurping" Federal powers in the interstate part of the bus line operation.

Rent Boost Set For Arlington Apartment House

A flat $1.25-a-month rent increase on each of 655 units at the Arlington Village Apartments will be ordered shortly, retroactive to January 1, 1950, I. Chance Buchanan, director of the Alexandria-Arlington Defense Rental Area, said yesterday.

Buchanan said the rent hike, in return for $64,000 of improvements to the apartments which now range in cost from $45.73 to $93.15 have already been granted tentative approval.

Also in sight, he said, is a similar $1.25 increase for 1060 units in Colonial Village Apartments, where $100,000 of improvements were to have been completed in 1949. Increases on these apartments, ranging now from $48.87 to $82.51, will probably be retroactive to January 1, too.

Ouster 'Trial' Of CIO Is Hit By FTA Union

By the United Press

The Food, Tobacco and Agricultural Workers Union said yesterday its ouster "trial" by the national CIO for being too left-wing is illegal, unconstitutional and "a disgrace to the labor movement."

The assertion was included in a brief prepared by union officials for a special three-man CIO committee considering the union's fate. The committee will hand its recommendations to the CIO executive board, which will make the final decision.

In another development, the CIO nnounced that rank-and-file members of the Food and Tobacco Workers will be permitted to testify. The CIO originally had barred 22 such witnesses representing 15 FTA locals, arguing that only the five national officers could be heard.

The hearing is the second in a series of "trials" of allegedly pro-Communist unios. They were ordered by CIO President Philip Murray following his sweeping victory over dissident left-wingers at the recent Cleveland convention.

The charges were outlined by President William Steinberg of the American Radio Association. He said the FTA "consistently" parroted the Communist Party line and opposed CIO policies decided in democratic fashion by majority vote.

"When this course of conduct continues over a long period of time," he said, "it becomes perfectly obvious that the judgments on policy made by the leadership of these unions are not dictated by any concern for the labor movement or the CIO.

"Their judgments are based on only one criterion, that is the interests of the Communist party, and, through that party, the interests of the Russian government."

In all, 10 CIO unions have been accused by other union officials of being pro-Communist. All are expected to be booted out of the CIO. The FTA claims 30,000 members.

Another special CIO committee recently took testimony on similar charges against the United Office ad Professional Workers Union.

Umstead Not to Run For Senate This Year

Durham, N. C., Jan. 6 (AP)—Former Senator William B. Umstead of Durham announced tonight that he would not be a candidate for the United States Senate in the coming primary.

He said that "I regret to announce that conditions resulting from a surgical operation on December 20 have compelled me to decide that I shall not be a candidate for the United States Senate in the coming primary."

Umstead's announcement leaves the field for the United States Senate with only two announced candidates. Senator Clyde R. Hoey of Shelby and Senator Frank Graham of Chapel Hill have said they will be candidates to succeed themselves.

UAW Guard Calls 'Kidnap' Tale a Hoax

Detroit, Jan. 6 (AP).—Police Inspector Joseph Krug said a night watchman who found a dynamite charge at the CIO United Automobile Workers International Headquarters admitted tonight that his story of an abduction was a hoax.

Thomas

The watchman, William Thomas, 58, broke down after nearly 13 hours of constant grilling by police and the FBI. Thomas said he had been "working extra hard" at the UAW headquarters and was in a "bad mental state" following exposure of the dynamite attempt December 20.

Krug quoted Thomas as saying "I wanted to commit suicide but I couldn't go through with it."

Thomas insisted he knew nothing of the attempted assassinations of UAW President Walter P. Reuther and his brother, Victor, also a UAW official.

"I wanted to kill myself because people were saying behind my back that I set the bomb," Krug quoted the watchman as saying.

Thomas' story got snarled in the clothesline with which, he had insisted, his "kidnapers" attempted to choke him. Police Lieut. Hugh Burke handed him a rope similar to the one tied around his neck when he staggered to the gate of the Henry Ford estate in suburbana Dearborn at 8:30 a. m. today.

Thomas made a peculiar knot in it similar to the one found in the "torture" rope. Confronted with it, the quiet-spoken janitor his story of being kidnaped by two men at 5 a. m. today from a downtown street, taken for a ride, tied hand and foot and then dumped out of the car in suburban Dearborn.

Defense Dept. Bid Plan to Aid Small Business

NYHT News Service

A far-reaching new program to make information on the procurement plans of all three military services available simultaneously to businessmen throughout the country was announced yesterday by Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson.

The new plan, to go into effect February 1, was described as another step in a campaign to curb 5-percenters and aid small business.

The program is designed to strike at the heart of complaints by many businessmen that the present military procurement system makes it too difficult and complicated for them to do business with the Government.

The Army, Navy and Air Force maintain nearly 70 purchasing offices scattered across the Nation which issue requests for bids on military contracts.

Businessmen face the almost-impossible task of keeping in touch with many of these scattered purchasing offices to find out whether the military services are buying any items their firms might produce.

The Johnson program will continue this procurement system, but augment it with regional military information offices in nine major cities.

The businessman needs only to visit or get in touch with the regional office in his area.

$300 Billion Output in 1955 Seen by Truman

rent control for another year, adequate foreign aid, approval of the International Trade Organization charter, enactment of Point Four for aid to underdeveloped areas.

With reference to the basic problem of declining business outlays in new plant and equipment, the President and the Council apparently concluded that Government as such could do little to force a reversal in the trend. Its only lever was exhortation.

Accordingly, the burden of the report was that the American economy is an expanding one and that therefore business has ample opportunity to obtain good returns on outlays it should make for greater production.

The specific forecast for the future was contained in the Council's review. It flatly predicted good conditions until the middle of the year.

After that, the review said, some changes could come that could halt the advance.

Factors for Decline

The end of the stimulating effect of the GI insurance dividend, diminishing foreign aid, declines in exports, saturation of the middle-income market for autos, and failure of construction for middle and low-income rentals could combine with the declining trend in business investment to cause a moderate business decline in the latter part of 1950, the Council implied.

But, it said, this need not happen, although it will take "affirmative action" by business and Government to prevent it. These were the remedial steps recommended:

1. On the part of business: No general price increases; indeed, a few "selective" price decreases, notably in steel. The council took time out to condemn the steel industry for its recent price increases, which it felt were not justifiable.

2. Also on the part of business: Sufficiently high investment in recognition that "the possibilities for increase in consumption are large."

In other words, a reversal of the present trend. On the part of Government: Tax policies to assure business the prospect of an adequate profit for a long enough time.

Raising Consumer Buying

3. For the longer run: Raising the level of consumer buying power at a rate even faster than the growth in business outlays for plant and equipment.

4. On the part of both business and Government: Realization that even the cyclical downturns in business characteristic of the past hundred years are no longer tolerable.

5. Adjustment, both in Federal budgeting and financial investment policy, to the fact that the European Recovery Program is terminating. This means acceptance of Point Four and willingness of business to invest more money abroad.

Full Use of Resources

The council was flat-footed in its prediction that if a business decline comes later this year, it will not be because of, or in reaction to, an inflation.

The problem is rather to advance toward full utilization of our resources of plant and manpower, the council said. Failure to realize it in 1949 cost us from 10 billion dollars to 13 billion dollars of total output which would otherwise have been produced, Mr. Truman pointed out.

The goal that it and the President urged for 1950 was an employment level of 61 million jobs, with only 2 or at most 2½ million unemployed. This figure is about equal to the sum of "frictional" unemployment (workers in transition between jobs) and certain "hard cores" of persistent unemployment that will take a longer time to conquer.

Absence of Nourse Noted

In one aspect, the review reflected the departure from the council of its former chairman, Edwin C. Nourse, who resigned last November.

Nourse had long been an advocate of steadily falling prices as the mechanism that permit consumers to keep up their rate of buying, parallel to advances in productivity. Without some such adjustment, the ability to produce would outstrip the ability to absorb the production from the market.

But the present council, Leon H. Keyserling and John D. Clark, do not accept falling prices as a feasible solution. Although they recommended some few price decreases, they plumped instead for a steadily rising wage rate.

Two Legislative Items

The two new recommendations of Mr. Truman for legislative action called for:

1. Substantially increasing the present 10-year maximum period for business loans made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. The President saw this as a means to help small businesses that have difficulties in obtaining private financing.

2. Broader powers for the Federal Reserve Board so that it could increase bank reserve requirements in a period of inflation. These powers should be applicable to all banks insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, not merely the members of the Federal Reserve System.

A notable omission from the message and the review was any mention of the question of monopoly and "bigness" in business, although that is a subject of much current interest, especially in Congress.

Room for Big and Little

In its annual report issued last week, however, the Council touched on the topic. It declared there was room in the economy for both big and little businesses, and implied that "bigness" in itself was not economically villainous.

Another hot potato not discussed, and referred to only parenthetically in an acknowledgment that it exists, is the conflict of interest between the Federal Reserve and the Treasury over control of credit expansion in inflationary times.

Eleanor Roosevelt's new, best-selling book, "This I Remember," starts tomorrow in The Washington Post. Don't miss a single episode.

Medium-Cost Home Bill Is Introduced

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

A revised middle-income housing program to encourage construction of homes for people making between $2000 and $3000 a year was introduced in Congress yesterday.

The bill authorizes long-term mortgage guarantees totaling $2,250,000,000 to cooperatives and other nonprofit organizations which would undertake actual construction.

The new program was introduced on the Senate side by Chairman Burnet R. Maybank (D., S. C.) of the Senate Finance Committee and on the House side by Chairman Brent Spence (D., Ky.) of the House Banking Committee.

It was offered as a supplement to the public housing plan Congress approved last year to aid families making less than $2000 annually.

Earlier this week Maybank and Spence went over details of their plan with President Truman, who called in his State of the Union message for Government action to encourage private industry to build more homes for people with moderate incomes.

The bill would:

1. Establish under the supervision of the Housing and Home Finance Administrator a mixed-ownership corporation known as the National Mortgage Corporation for Housing Cooperatives, and would authorize this corporation to make long-term mortgage loans at low interest rates to housing cooperatives.

2. Finance the new corporation initially by a 100-million-dollar advance from the Treasury, plus 50 million dollars provided by housing cooperatives and private individuals.

3. Limit underwriting authority for the mortgage guarantees to 300 million dollars for the first year, which could be increased the second year to a two-billion-dollar total upon approval of the President.

4. Authorize the agency to make "preliminary advances of funds" to help the housing cooperatives organize and draw up their project plans. These advances could amount to from 3 percent to 5 percent of the "estimated development cost" of the construction.

5. Authorize the mortgage loans to cover up to 95 percent of value and run for as long as 50 years at low interest rates—about 3 percent.

6. Provide for replacement of the Government's initial 100 million dollar investment eventually with private capital supplied through sale of stock in the corporation. The participating cooperatives would be required to subscribe to the capital stock in an amount equal to 7½ percent of any loans made to them.

The sponsors said the legislation not only would help provide homes for veterans and others unable to buy higher-priced houses, but also would stimulate private investment in home construction which has been on the decline the past year.

Public hearings on the new program will open before the Senate Housing Subcommittee Wednesday, Maybank announced.

68th Birthday

Truman Goes To Rayburn Celebration

President Truman went up to the Capitol yesterday to help House Speaker Sam Rayburn celebrate his sixty-eighth birthday.

Rayburn

The President and many other of Rayburn's old friends gathered in the Speaker's private dining room for luncheon. Mr. Truman waved a cheery "Hi" to acquaintances, and stayed about an hour before returning to the White House.

The House gave Rayburn an ovation when Democratic Leader McCormack (Mass.) called attention to the Speaker's birthday anniversary. Republicans joined Democrats in brief tributes to the Speaker. Rayburn told newsmen he "never felt better in my life."

A reception in Rayburn's honor was held late at the Mayflower Hotel.

Women Fight U. S. Directive To Register

New York, Jan. 6 (AP).—Mrs. Muriel Draper, president, said today that leaders of the Congress of American Women have been directed by the Department of Justice to register as foreign agents.

"We cannot register as foreign agents when we are not," Mrs. Draper told a news conference at the offices of O. John Rogge, attorney for the organization. The organization is listed as subversive by the United States Attorney General.

Mrs. Draper urged a campaign to get the Government to reconsider its order. She said no deadline had been set for the registration.

Rogge said other like organizations also had been directed to register under the Foreign Agents Registration Act, but he refused to name them.

The congress formerly was affiliated with the Women's International Democratic Federation. Mrs. Draper said the national executive board of the congress voted December 11 to withdraw from the federation.

Despite this action, she said, the congress was advised by William E. Foley, chief of the foreign agents registration section of the Justice Department, that "the organization has a continuing obligation to register despite any steps it might take at the present time to discontinue its activities."

"We cannot register as foreign agents when we are not," Mrs. Draper said.

Gloria Agrin, another attorney for the congress, said that conviction for failure to register under the act could mean five years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine.

Story of Approval Of B-36 Described As 'Inaccurate'

NYHT News Service

The Department of Defense's consolidated military press service issued a statement yesterday saying that "the facts" contained in yesterday's New York Herald Tribune story concerning approval of the Air Force's B-36 "Intercontinental" bomber by the inter-service weapons systems evaluation group "are inaccurate."

What the inaccuracies were was not specified.

Sources closer to Secretary Johnson than the consolidated press officer said it was "absurd" to think that Mr. Johnson would have approved estimated Air Force allocations of 300 million dollars in the 1950 and 1951 budgets for new B-36s unless he and the Joint Chiefs of Staff had been given a green light on further procurement of the big bomber by the weapons evaluation group.

1902 Box With Whisky Bottle, Coins Found in White House

A marble box, containing an empty whisky bottle among other things, has been found buried under the first floor of the White House.

It was put there in President Theodore Roosevelt's administration by workmen who were finishing a major overhauling of the Executive Mansion. The bottle's label showed it contained "Hunter's Baltmore Rye."

The box was found by R. J. Murphy, a marble setter, and A. Lawrence McIvor, his helper. It was buried in the main entrance hall, between two center columns, and under the well-known floor slab which contains the dates in bronze, "1792-1902," surrounded by an ellipse of bronze stars.

President Truman inspected the box in the office of Assistant Press Secretary Eben Ayers late yesterday. He gave instructions that it was to be buried again in some part of the White House.

The box was about 14 inches square and 3 inches deep. On top was the inscription, "Tuesday, December 2, 1902." On the inside of the bottom were these other notations: "W. S. Parker, Police Officer, White House, Dec. 2, 1902; Ike Hoover; W. M. G.; N. R."

Ike Hoover later became famous as chief usher at the White House.

Three newspapers were found in the box—two copies of the Evening Star, one dated December 1, 1902, and the other December 2, and one copy of the old Washington Times, dated December 2.

Also found in the box were seven Indian pennies, two nickels and a dime, and a number of calling cards of White House personnel and addressed envelopes.

Stuffed into the empty whisky flask was a list of names, a note that read, "Set by Frank Nelson, marble setter," and four two-cent stamps.

Senator Nearly Ready With Souvenir Plan

Senator Kenneth McKellar (D., Tenn.) reported yesterday a plan will soon be ready for disposing of surplus material taken from the White House during its remodeling.

McKellar made the report to Congress as chairman of the Commission on Renovation of the Executive Mansion.

Meanwhile, material removed from the White House, in demand as souvenirs is being carefully stored, the report said.

McCarthy Asks 'Rule' Action

Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.) yesterday voiced a new appeal for Washington home rule in announcing his intention to retain his membership in the Senate District Committee.

McCarthy, one of the bipartisan District Committee group that won Senate approval of the home rule bill last year, criticized Congress' treatment of the District and declared its affairs could better be managed by its own citizens.

His declaration came as Washington groups continued their drive for House action on the Senate-approved home rule bill, now pigeonholed by the House District Committee. Aim is to get 218 House members—a majority—to sign a petition sponsored by Representatives John F. Kennedy (D., Mass.) and James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.) that would present the bill directly for a House vote.

Sponsors reported the quota of petition signers is less than one third full. Sixtny-nine members were said to have signed as of yesterday, 20 more than when Congress adjourned last fall.

Senator McCarthy made his home rule declaration in a letter to Senator Hugh Butler (R., Nebr.) chairman of the Senate Republican Committee on Committees.

Senator McCarthy explained: "I feel that unless and until we give the District home rule, it is a great mistake to consider the running of the Capital of the world a minor matter.

"The result of this attitude on the part of Congress is tragically obvious.

"For example, in a city that should be the model for the other cities of the world, the school building program is woefully inadequate, and health, housing and slum conditions in some areas practically defy description.

"In my opinion it is completely unfair to the people of our States and to the people of Washington that the Congress should be required to do a job which the local residents could better do."

Senator McCarthy paid warm tribute to Senate District Chairman Matthew M. Neely (D., W. Va.) as "a very fine individual with whom I enjoy working," and "a man who is deeply and intelligently interested in having a well run city."

D. C. Building Bill Offered

Representative Arthur G. Klein (D., N. Y.) yesterday introduced a bill to require all contractors building private houses in the District to get city licenses and post performance bonds.

The plan would take effect a year after enactment of the proposed law. Under the bill, details of the license and bonding systems would be worked out and put into effect by regulations of the District Commissioners.

The measure was sent to the House District Committee of which Klein is a member.

The bill would make it unlawful for any person, without the license and performance bond, to build or remodel for profit any private home or other nonpublic building in the District.

Maximum penalty for violation of the requirements would be $1000 fine or a year in jail or both.

Corn Syrup Sale as Maple Jars Aiken

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Some of the leading hotels in Washington serve corn syrup as pure maple syrup, Senator George D. Aiken (R., Vt.) told the Senate yesterday.

"When all the agencies of law enforcement which the Government possesses can't stop that, what hope is there that these agencies can prevent the serving of oleo as butter in a million eating places of the Nation?" Aiken asked.

Aiken carried the fight for the Nation's dairy farmers against the proposal to remove all taxes and license fees from margarine, but providing penalties for restaurants that sell oleo as butter.

Instead, Aiken wants to remove all taxes, but forbid the shipment of yellow margarine in interstate commerce.

Aiken's office told The Washington Post that Aiken ordered hot cakes with "pure Vermont maple syrup" at a prominent Washington hotel a year ago. The senator, an office assistant said, "can tell maple syrup blindfolded." Inquiry revealed that the "pure Vermont maple syrup" was plain corn syrup, and "not Vermont corn at that."

Corn, Maple Syrups Mixed

Investigations by Government agencies revealed corn syrup or maple and corn syrup mixtures sold in several other eating houses as pure maple syrup, Aiken said.

As a result of Aiken's protest, the Federal Trade Commission has cited one syrup company for misbranding its product, and other cases may soon be brought, he said.

Aiken attacked the support of the margarine bill by Southern senators. Most margarine is made from cottonseed oil.

"The average wage rate in three important cotton producing States," he said, "is as follows. Mississippi, 40 cents an hour; Arkansas, 47 cents an hour; Georgia, 37 cents an hour.

"In contrast we find the great dairy State of Washington pays its agricultural labor 93 cents an hour, Iowa pays 71 cents an hour and Minnesota 60 cents an hour.

Fulbright Interrupts

He was interrupted by Senator J. W. Fulbright (D., Ark.), who declared:

"If we had had monopolistic protection by law such as butter interests have had for 64 years, perhaps we could pay such salaries.

"The South has been so long exploited by Yankees," Fulbright shouted, "that we can hardly get enough to live on." He mentioned freight rates, oleo taxes and other "regulations discriminating against the South."

At this point Senator Paul H. Douglas (D., Ill.) halted him.

"When Governor Arnall of Georgia tried to do something about freight rates," Douglas said, "he found Southern Senators and businessmen lined up with the railroads. We can't fight battles for them when they won't fight for themselves."

Three amendments were offered to the oleo bill by Republican Senators from dairy States. Senator William Langer (D., N. Dak.) tried to link repeal of excise taxes on transportation and communications to the repeal of oleo taxes.

Bricker Hits Lobbying by U. S. Officials

Lobbying and misrepresentation by Government officials threatens the integrity and independence of Congress, Senator John W. Bricker (R., Ohio), said yesterday.

In a letter to Chairman Frank Buchanan (D., Pa.), Bricker said the special House committee investigating lobbying deserved commendation for its recognition of the fact that not only paid advocates but Federal Government employes as well can represent "pressure groups" before congressional committees.

"I am becoming increasingly suspicious of the supposedly impartial agency heads and administrators," Bricker wrote.

"Far from being suppliers of facts, they are, I suspect, frequently attempting to mislead or coerce the Congress. It is the unfortunate truth that, with the incomprehensible complexity of the executive branch of the Government at the present time, the Congress must rely heavily upon agents of the executive branch in order to legislate wisely."

Patriot Groups Urged to Fight Easier DP Law

Chairman Pat McCarran (D., Nev.), of the Senate Judiciary Committee, yesterday urged patriotic organizations to oppose all efforts to liberalize the displaced persons law.

In a "preliminary report" on his recent investigation of DP problems in Europe, he said a "complete breakdown" in administration of the Displaced Persons Act had permitted the entrance to this country of a flood of aliens "who will become ready recruits in subversive organizations."

He inserted his report in the Congressional Record.

To show the United States already had major problems in enforcing immigration laws, McCarran said that:

1. A former American consul on the Canadian border estimates there are three million to five million aliens illegally in this country.

2. Immigration officials estimate there are 50,000 Cubans living illegally in the Miami, (Fla.) area and 50,000 illegal aliens in or near Los Angeles.

3. Officials estimate that about 100 stowaways arrive in the United States each month.

McCarran said the House-passed Administration bill to liberalize the DP law would "destroy our immigration barriers." He has blocked Senate action on the measure by keeping it bottled up in his committee.

As for his one-man European tour, he said it disclosed "innumerable instances of wholesale fraud, misrepresentation, fictitious documents and perjury."

He denied assertions by President Truman that the present law discriminates against Jews and Catholics.

Sales Remain On Rise Here, Drop in U. S.

By S. Oliver Goodman

Again in contrast with the national trend, Washington department store sales in the week after Christmas spurted 15 percent above the same 1948 week.

Nationally, store sales in the same period dropped 3 percent, the Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday.

The continued upward trend here offset a drop elsewhere in the Fifth Federal Reserve District. Baltimore sales for the week were off 2 percent and other area cities averaged 6 percent lower. But the sharp gain in Washington brought the Fifth District average to 5 percent higher.

For the four weeks ended December 31, here's how the Christmas sales picture shaped up: Washington, up 8 percent; Fifth District, up 5 percent; United States total, up 3 percent. Inasmuch as December, 1948, was a record month, the gains meant new sales peaks locally and nationally.

In the December 31 week, the best showing was made in the Richmond District. In Cleveland, at the other extreme, sales were down 10 percent.

ECONOMY CAR: A sleek, streamlined convertible car to cost $1000 or less" was unveiled here yesterday by Nash Motors at the Mayflower to "get the reaction" from about 800 invited guests. Judging from the comments, the red two-passenger model will find a ready market if and when Nash decides to produce it. Company officials pointed out that the displayed model was a handmade job built purely for research purposes.

MONEY IDEA: Want an attention-attracting device for your sales letters. Glue two bright new pennies to each letter under the heading "Two Pennies for Your Thoughts!" A California savings and loan association finds it very effective.

Crash Responsibility

If Capt. Erick Rios Bridoux was quoted correctly some days ago as feeling no responsibility for the air crash which killed 55 persons here, the complaint of the Civil Aeronautics Administration ought to jar his complacency. It was the fighter-type plane piloted by Captain Rios—who is director of civil aviation in Bolivia—which caused the Nation's worst air tragedy November 1 when it smashed into the side of an Eastern Airlines transport. The CAA general counsel now has accused Captain Rios of operating his aircraft in a "careless and reckless manner." The complaint lists seven specific violations of civil aeronautics regulations, including failure to have an airworthiness certificate and previous operation without a permit, and it recommends revocation of Captain Rios' pilot's license. Whether there were additional factors in the crash, such as irregularities on the part of Eastern or the CAA control tower, remains to be determined by the Civil Aeronautics Board.

As a matter of hindsight, the complaint may be helpful in preventing future tragedies, though it does not settle the outstanding question of ownership of the fighter plane or liability for damages in the crash. Some of the violations, such as the ignoring of landing instructions, obviously could not have been anticipated. Granted that the CAA's inspection facilities are limited, however, why were not the permit violation and lack of an airworthiness certificate detected and acted upon before Captain Rios endangered a busy airport? How many other pilots and planes are violating regulations?

The validity of another practice is cast in doubt by the CAA complaint. Captain Rios' pilot's license was granted him through an arrangement with Bolivia which provides for automatic honoring of each country's pilot's ratings in the other country. Reciprocity of this type has much to commend it, provided that standards are the same. But surely it is dangerous to grant operating privileges unless there are rigid tests to insure that guests have a thorough understanding of both aeronautics regulations and the English language. The experience of Captain Rios suggests that such tests ought to be applied more vigorously for the sake of safety even if they cause some temporary embarrassment with foreign visitors.

Samuel Gompers

All the first-rank officials of the American Federation of Labor are joining in the various current celebrations of the birth of its first great leader, Samuel Gompers. Gompers was born a hundred years ago this month. The principles which he followed in building up the AFL may be summarized as follows: (1) The main concern of organized labor should be to improve the economic position of wage-workers and to obtain general acceptance by employers of the principles of collective bargaining and the closed shop. (2) The cause of labor should not be identified with any political party and, apart from certain protective legislation, labor should have no long-term political objectives. (3) The maintenance of the profit system. (4) The virtual autonomy of each international union.

Under Gompers' leadership these trade-union principles gradually became accepted as an integral part of "the American way of life." But even before his death in 1924, the "horizontal unionism," upon which he had so stubbornly insisted, had begun to seem archaic. For one thing, many of the crafts upon which the movement had built its strength had been rendered obsolete by technological innovation; in one industry after another the skilled worker was being supplanted by new divisions of labor and assembly-line production. The proportion of skilled or semiskilled workers was increasing yearly. The new science of "personnel relations," and the growing interest of employers in the welfare of their workers, fostered the growth of company unions. The membership of the AFL unions became static, and then began to dwindle. An effort to recoup the losses by organization of the automobile industry and Southern textile industries came to nothing. With the great depression, and the opportunity offered by the Wagner Labor Relations Act, the principle of "vertical unionism," once represented by the Knights of Labor, was suddenly revived. It led to a new schism and the organization of the CIO.

Another cardinal principle of Gomperism perished with the organization of the Political Action Committee and the active participation of labor in political life. It is now clear that for better or worse the American labor movement is going through an evolution almost identical with that of the British trades-union movement after its alliance with the forces of Fabian socialism. What is less clear is the role of the American Federation of Labor in this evolution. Its attitude toward its great rival has been now one of hostility and now one of collaboration.

However, the AFL has lately shown new signs of vigor, and some of its most effective recent work has been done abroad, where its agents have been preaching unionism free from Communist control. It has made tacit alliances with the Social Democratic trade unionists to whom "Gomperism" and and its works was formerly anathema.

Economic Report

The President's Economic Report is in large part a repetitive appeal for enactment of the legislative program outlined in his state-of-the-union message. Until his budget message appears, it will be impossible to pass judgment on numerous proposals involving expansion of the lending and spending powers of Government agencies. For the over-all cost of running the Federal Government is, or should be, a large factor in determining the size and scope of new projects and in setting the time for their introduction. The President says he is recommending tax revisions that will "yield a moderate amount of net additional revenue" and at the same time reduce present inequities and stimulate business activity. Yet any addition to the already heavy tax burden will, directly or indirectly, reduce the amount of disposable consumer income, to some extent curtail business activity, and put a damper on investment activity. It is open to question whether the need for encouraging business investment, which the report emphasizes, can be reconciled with advocacy of new spending projects that increase the burden of taxation.

The President quite properly underlines the importance of effective teamwork between free enterprise and the Government. But his conclusion that the "relatively safe passage from inflation to greater (economic) stability" shows that businessmen, workers and farmers exercised "much greater judgment and restraint than in earlier similar periods" is certainly open to challenge. It ignores the fact that 1949 was a year of serious labor disturbances and that the coal industry is still in a state of turmoil. The President also declares that we have regained stability, although there is no assurance that a further round of wage increases and subsequent price advances can be avoided. Furthermore, he believes that there are few, if any, major areas in which price increases could be justified under present circumstances.

Wage adjustments, on the other hand, are said to be the "one historic method by which buying power has increased with increasing productivity." In the President's opinion, such adjustments should remain in the hands of management and labor. In simpler language this statement means that wage increases are needed to sustain economic expansion and that the present system of collective bargaining provides sufficient protection against excessive demands. Such assertions are contrary to the facts and become the basis for optimistic generalizations that enable the Chief Executive to evade responsibility for coming to grips with labor-management problems which in reality prevent the kind of effective teamwork which he lauds.

As we stated in a recent editorial on the annual report of the President's Council of Economics Advisers, which stressed the Government's friendly attitude toward business, it is not general professions of this sort, but specific policy recommendations that are the real concern of the business community. Despite the restrained tone of the report, there is no indication that the President is prepared to curtail his welfare program. Moreover, he insists that the anti-inflation controls for which he vainly appealed would, if applied in time, have prevented the 1949 business recession. "We must not again make the mistake," he warns, "of failing to adopt affirmative policies necessary for continued economic stability and growth."

His handling of the farm problem is likewise unrealistic. The changes in the present system recommended by the President, evidently patterned on the Brannan plan, would necessitate tighter and more comprehensive controls over agriculture than have ever been imposed.

This discursiveness of the report distracts attention from the President's legislative objectives, while his numerous legislative recommendations are brief summaries that do not permit of critical analysis. It is to be hoped that the budget message will supply the data required to round out this inadequate document. For sketchy outlines of projected legislative programs are more likely to confuse than to enlighten the public.

Conditions Abroad

ECA countries report notable progress in 1949, with farm industrial production in western Europe at record heights. These impressive gains, however, have not solved the problem of dollar deficits, nor have the barriers restricting trade between western European countries been removed to provide expanded outlets for an increasing volume of goods. The integration of western Europe's economy, which Administrator Hoffman rightly considers a condition of low-cost production and maximum utilization of productive resources, is still no more than a hope. In other words, his goal of a single European market is still far away. However, there is a growing realization of the fact that a sound and lasting recovery cannot be insured merely by stepping up domestic production. Marketing, rather than production, problems are of the first importance. The solution is obvious; the question is whether European policy-makers will have the courage to follow Administrator Hoffman's advice; and if they do, whether the people will support them. The acid test of the recovery program on the economic side lies ahead.

District Budget

The increase of more than 15 million dollars in the District's budget for fiscal 1951, compared with appropriations for the current year, is a direct dividend from the sales tax. For the first time since the war the Commissioners have been able to plan substantial improvements in the services that the city renders to its inhabitants, without wondering where the money is coming from. To be sure, the increases in estimates are still meager when they are apportioned among more than 20 different services. But at least the city fathers are able to recommend substantially higher outlays for schools, public welfare, public works, police and fire protection. The sales tax and the increased levy on real estate have made possible a good start toward correcting the critical inadequacies of District budgets in recent years.

It is only reasonable that a large share of the increase should go to the schools. With the enormous growth in the city's population, the Board of Education has been hard pressed to save the school system from progressive deterioration. We have no doubt that the school authorities should have had the entire 33 million dollars that they requested. But the proposed budget of $28,822,300 will permit a good deal of progress in school construction if Congress does not whittle it down.

The proposed $2,195,000 increase in welfare funds will permit a start to be made on the long-delayed infirmary building at the Home for the Aged at Blue Plains and on the shift of the Industrial Home School (white) from its present site to Laurel, Md.; also included are improvements in the Industrial Home School (colored) at Blue Plains. These are urgent necessities that should not be longer delayed. Even so, it appears that the most acute welfare problem in the District is in the public assistance sphere. This fund was increased by only $115,000, which will not be enough to maintain the present inadequate standards. Approval of this item would probably mean a 20 percent cut in relief payments—already geared to 1946 instead of 1950 costs. Certainly this is grave deficiency that ought to be corrected in Congress.

The Health Department, moreover, was given a smaller estimate than its current appropriation. It may be true that additional schools and welfare institutions are more urgent at the moment than further improvement of our municipal health service. But the reduction of the health estimates about 50 percent below what the health authorities think they should be indicates how far the District is from catching up with its postwar obligations. We surmise that if home rule were already in effect and the pressure of public opinion could be exerted on these estimates, one of the first steps to be taken would be the construction of long-delayed improvements through bond issues so as to spread the payments out over a number of years.

Foreign Policy Guidance

Scandal-seeking members of Congress are manufacturing a mountain out of a molehill when they imply that there was something sinister about the State Department's circulation to the foreign service of a confidential memorandum on Formosa as well as in the contents of the note itself. That memorandum was aimed at acquainting officers in the field with the state of mind of the State Department. It cautioned them to expect the fall of Formosa and instructed them to counter the false impression that intervention would save the Chinese Nationalists or that loss of the island would be of great damage to American security. Far from being shocked at the disclosure that the State Department is giving its officers in the field some policy guidance, this newspaper believes that the department is to be commended for its organizational job.

It would be quite impossible for information officers overseas to convey any understanding of American foreign policy unless they themselves were informed. A good deal of mischief could be done, to cite the current example, by spreading misconceptions about the significance of Formosa, as if they were entertained by the State Department. Too often in the past press attaches have been left to flounder in their own devices or to get their information from nonofficial or even foreign sources.

Obviously it is not feasible for the State Department to put out mere canned statements of American doctrine which attaches would parrot like representatives of the Kremlin. What State has been trying to do is to furnish diplomatic personnel with general statements of department attitudes which they can adapt to their work. This is common diplomatic practice. Indeed, what governmental agency or private business does not circulate guidance memoranda to responsible employes?

If anything is to be condemned in this affair, it is the abuse of confidence by General MacArthur's headquarters in leaking the memorandum to the press. Obviously memoranda of this type do not contain state secrets, but there are many situations in which public disclosure of instructions could embarrass our relations with other countries. Perhaps the State Department is remiss in not acquainting Congress further with this practice. In any event, however, it is time that the complaining legislators grew up in their understanding of twentieth century diplomacy.

Hawaiian Statehood

A well expressed letter entitled "Hawaiian Statehood and D. C. Home Rule," by Kenneth P. Armstrong, appeared in your issue of January 4.

Mr. Armstrong calls attention to the two principal factors of opposition to Statehood he considers bear resemblance to opposition to home rule for Washington. In his second point—"fear of some persons that elections will be dominated by non-Caucasian races"—he cogently and correctly points out the "speciousness of any argument that a free and intelligent electorate would be controlled by racial blocs."

However, Mr. Armstrong appears not to be familiar with the official record, which shows stanch support of Statehood for Hawaii by the business and financial interests in Hawaii.

The record shows, for instance, that the Hawaiian Sugar Planters Association, which represents the largest industry in Hawaii—sugar—has for several years supported State government for Hawaii, both in testimony before congressional committees and by resolution. The record also shows that Philip E. Spaulding, president of C. Brewer & Co., one of the so-called "Big Five" companies in Hawaii, and president last year of the HSPA, testified in favor of Statehood at congressional hearings in Honolulu in 1948.

The attitude of Hawaiian industry was perhaps best summarized in 1948 by the secretary of the HSPA, Mr. Slator M. Miller, in testimony before a Senate committee: "The industry feels that Statehood is a necessary protection for the economic welfare of the islands."

Though Mr. Armstrong's letter gets his point across both clearly and well, and his sincere interest in self-government is unquestioned, it would be unfair to business interests in Hawaii not to state that industry in Hawaii favors Statehood. Both the Chamber of Commerce of Honolulu and the Junior Chamber support Statehood. Statehood for Hawaii is a major item in the official program of the Honolulu Chamber of Commerce, and is coordinated through the Territory's Statehood commission.

Security Planning

It is hoped that the full review of foreign policy by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and the House Foreign Affairs Committee will lead to a closer integration in the future between the Government departments administering the various foreign programs. For example, there is very limited coordination now in the field of export controls between the ECA, the Commerce, State and Defense Departments. The military assistance program will further complicate the current coordination difficulties among these more or less free-wheeling departments.

As the Committee for Economic Development in its recent study on national security pointed out, the National Security Council has developed increased coordination between the State and Defense Departments, but has not yet "formulated a comprehensive set of current and long-range security policies covering both foreign and domestic aspects of the problem (security). As a result, the President is seriously handicapped in carrying out his responsibility to recommend a balanced and comprehensive security program to the Congress and the people." Perhaps this situation is because the National Security Council operates chiefly on an ad hoc consultation basis at the request of an interested member rather than an organized consultation basis.

The recommendation of the Committee for Economic Development that three new full-time civilian members of the council should be appointed by the President, may well remedy this deficiency of the National Security Council.

Further, if one or two of the three full-time members were members of the Republican Party, it might satisfy to a large degree those Republicans who complain that they do not like a bipartisan foreign policy where they participate only in the crash landings but not in takeoffs. Republican membership in the NSC would provide to a large degree the desired participation in the formation of foreign policy.

"Half Century"

Your January 2 editorial, "Half Century," was a notable contribution to the current confusion which it leaves worse confounded.

We are assured that "mathematically the conservatives who believe that January 1, 1951, inaugurates the new half century have a slight edge" because when you have a half dollar the fiftieth cent is an essential part of it, and your second half dollar begins with the fifty-first cent." Who would begrudge the use of a little sophistry to clarify the obscurities of higher mathematics?

The editorial does nobly when it points out that the source of trouble stems from the fact that there was no year 0 in the Julian-Gregorian calendar until its conclusion tells us that "the first millennium A. D. was not concluded until the last minute of the year 1000 A. D."!

The editorial concludes with the broad-minded and charitable gesture for those who believe in arithmetic. "It undoubtedly will be impossible to convince anyone who wants to believe that 1950 ushers in a new decade, (that is that 2 plus 2 equals 4) and probably the best way to please everybody is to celebrate 1950 and 1951."

Thus does the editorial, like Janus, the god who gave his name to this month of controversy, look in two directions, leaving the controversialists to enjoy their controversy and the rest of us confused

It is interesting to note from your December 31 issue that your reporter Benjamin Bradlee holds the twentieth century to have started January 1, 1900. When I went to school they taught that a century was 100, not 99 years and that no new century started until the previous one was out of the way. But admittedly developments in higher mathematics and metaphysics since then have made hash of concepts far more fundamental than the old one regarding the make-up of a century.

Since Mr. Bradlee, as a newsman, undoubtedly has readier access to information on such developments than the average Washington Post reader, would it not be helpful if he would explain in your columns the basis of his apparent position that the nineteenth century, or some previous century in the Christian era, consisted of only 99 years? At any rate would he explain when and where and how the missing year got lost?

Russians As Soldiers

It is strange that in all the millions of words written about the prospects of a "hot war" initiated by the Soviet Union, there seems to be such infrequent mention of one very important fact. The Russian people have proved themselves to be magnificent soldiers in defense of their own country, but indifferent fighters in a war of aggression—the exact reverse of the picture with respect to the Germans.

One has only to compare the superb showing of the Russians at Stalingrad with their performance in the war with little Finland to appreciate how differently they fight under differing circumstances.

We are wise to take full precautions and not to rely only upon the assumed inability of the Russian leaders to fight a successful aggressive war; after all, Finland was attacked. Nevertheless, consideration of this fundamental aspect of the military power of Russia should be stressed more than it has been, both as a measure of reassurance to those who live in dread of war and as a warning to us never to let the Russian leaders have an opportunity of accusing us (with any shade of justice) of being aggressors ourselves.

You appear to side with the "mathematicians" and imply either tardiness or negligence to the adapters of the Julian calendar. How can you? They did just what we all do in dealing with a numerical sequence, that is, apply a digit at the completion of a unit of measure. When I leave the garage my speedometer does not register 1 mile until the mile has been covered. Presumably (in digits) the count has up to then been "0", but it is counted just the same.

The baby is "1," not at the moment of birth, but when he has lived 1 year; and 50 when he has completed 50 years. So also with our era, based upon a birth. It became "1" when 1 year had passed; A.D. 50 meant that 50 years had passed; and 1950 that 1950 years were gone. Since 50 years indisputably make half a century, and 50 years beyond 1900 have passed, how conceivably can we help being in the second half?

CALENDARIUM.
Washington.

Was not the year 1 A.D. preceded immediately by the year 1 B.C.? Then, to give the first century its full quota of 100 years it must have included both the years 1 A.D. and 100 A.D. And by simply counting through the years, the nineteenth century should have included the years 1801 A.D. and 1900 A.D., and the first year of the present century would be 1901 A.D., making the mid-point of the century the midnight between December 31, 1950, and January 1, 1951.

Give the present year of 1950 to the second half of the century, claiming that we passed the mid-point of the century last Saturday midnight. This raises the question: which half century had only 49 years? And how was this major operation on the calendar performed? H. C. M.

Power Grab For Children

By Malvina Lindsay

Basic Thought Control

ON THE SURFACE it begins to look as if our old standby of hope for a better world—education—might have some weak legs.

Reports from Germany reveal effects of Nazi education cropping up in a disturbing way. This might be expected since Hitler got hold of millions of German children in their impressionable years.

Also Russian Communists are indoctrinating their children with increasing zeal and rigidity. Two American experts on Soviet thought control, Prof. George S. Counts and his research assistant, Mrs. Nucia Lodge, both of Teachers College, Columbia University, New York, tell of this in their book, "The Country of the Blind."

No longer, they say, can Soviet teachers choose from a variety of textbooks or use information coming from outside the Soviet Union. Every text is carefully prepared to indoctrinate along party lines. History books which in 1945 contained a fairly accurate account of the Allies' role in the war now have been changed to make the German invasion of Russia a plot backed by "British and American imperialists." From an early age the Russian child learns of the horrors of life under capitalism, of its glories under communism.

THROUGHOUT the world a struggle is on for the mind of the child. Organizations, individuals, governments are engaged in this. The emphasis by psychologists on early behavior patterns may have stepped up this contest. Undoubtedly the fierce wars of ideas going on everywhere have promoted it.

This comes at a time when a world-wide drive is under way to make man more literate—to make him better able to read propaganda. Yet this mass drive against illiteracy is engineered by those who would promote freedom. It is one of the projects of the United Nations Education, Scientific and Cultural Organization.

Regional conferences on illiteracy are being held this year in different parts of the world by UNESCO. One recently met at Mysore, in cooperation with the government of India.

Moreover, many countries, such as India, Mexico, many in Latin America, are promoting programs of their own to combat illiteracy. In the United States, Congress will soon be called on to act in regard to this country's illiterates and half-educated.

All of this seems the basic approach to building a sane world. But the question persists: What good literacy if minds, especially those of children, are to be controlled? It would seem that a little learning (enough to read slogans and half truths) might be a dangerous thing.

ALSO DOUBTERS might recall that Germany had a high rate of literacy, but that German authoritarian education molded thinking into formal patterns even before Hitler. And what if in a few years millions of "educated" Soviet youths with closed minds and distorted viewpoints are turned loose in the world?

Yet—what is the alternative to teaching man to read and write? Completely illiterate, would he still not be a tool of the propagandists—so long as he could see and hear? And if he does have an additional aid for groping his way through life, is it not more likely that he will touch on something that may spark his brain into thinking for himself?

In view of the present power grab for children's minds, democratic nations, groups, individuals who believe in teaching the child to think for himself might seem at a disadvantage. But the way the world is moving in science, technology, and human aspiration, it seems likely that national strength may soon not be measured in terms of masses of robots with regimented minds, but rather in individuals of creative power, invention, initiative, psychological maturity, boldness of thought, leadership—all the things that free education seeks to develop.

And even though the minds of millions of children throughout the world are now being set in rigid molds, there are always a few minds that do not jell according to formula. Such have erupted into rebellion against authoritarianism throughout history. Hence it is important that the elementary tools for self assertion—reading and writing—be passed around to all.

Great White Fleet

The photograph of the Great White Fleet in your issue of January 1 is way off as to date and description. The Great White Fleet that made the world cruise from December 16, 1907, to February 22, 1909, included 16 battleships, the oldest of which were the Kearsarge and Kentucky. The photo you show looks to me like the presidential naval review in New York by President Cleveland in about 1894. The ships shown had no part in the world cruise of 1907-09. WILLIAM EBERLIN,

The old buckets in that picture had long since gone to the scrap heap when that world cruise in 1907 took place. The ships in that fleet were all first-line battleships, most of them newly commissioned.

A Communication

Threat To Liberty, Defiance Of Law Seen In FBI Wire-Tapping

By James Lawrence Fly

Former Chairman, Federal Communications Commission

RECENT wire-tapping disclosures have reached such proportions that an urgent question of national public policy is now apparent to all who read. I venture to suggest it is high time for the Congress to take over the controls and give a thorough airing to the practice which Mr. Justice Holmes labeled "dirty business." Nullification of legislative policy is a function of the Legislature. It clearly is not the function of overzealous prosecutors who, ignoring the duty to enforce, themselves are the primary violators of the congressional mandate. By such means are the fundamental liberties of a free people whittled away.

And at what price? Let us look at the flotsam swept up by the Coplon and Gubichev trials. For months on end the FBI maintained continuous taps on the Coplon residence, the Coplon family residence in New York, the Coplon office—supplemented by a microphone there—and the Gubichev residence. Zeal unsatiated, the Government agents rifled the mails.

This, the Supreme Court in the Jackson case has long since declared unlawful and unconstitutional. Judge Ryan has ordered a parade of 81 FBI and Government representatives who had to do with those activities. The added force of technical tappers is not enumerated. The Government representatives stoutly and repeatedly assert that this extensive operation produced nothing of value to them in the grand jury proceedings or the trials. A pathetic end result!

THE BASIC implications, however, are not encompassed by the fact of sheer waste. Despite the Supreme Court's decisions in the two Nardone cases holding unlawful any conviction beseu upon wire-tap evidence or upon evidence procured through wire-tap leads, Government counsel did their level best to keep the court from unearthing these vital facts. In the Washington trial especially, Government counsel—officers of the court—all but denied the existence of wire-tapping. This by the device of charging the defense with a lack of proof, "fishing expedition," etc.

Apparently, they "succeeded" in misleading the Washington court. Throughout that time in the courtroom a responsible FBI representative—himself a lawyer—familiar with the facts, sat mute. He later swore he had no actual "knowledge." For this, in the New York trial, Judge Ryan delivered a reprimand. The bar associations have given attention to less startling conduct by private attorneys.

Yet, in my own extensive experience as Government counsel, I came to realize that the courts properly placed upon the Government the greater affirmative duty of disclosing every important fact. Today, instead of handing to the court the full and true facts, the Government is forcing the court to parade through a stream of agents equipped with short answers, inability to name responsible persons and conveniently feeble memories. This train of unprofessional, unethical and downright illegal conduct reaches a new low in the annals of our democratic processes.

WIRE-TAPPERS are no respecters of persons or of personal freedom. By maintaining the taps after the indictments, on numerous occasions the FBI breached the confidential relation between lawyer and client. (What would the same department have done had it discovered a defendant or his counsel tapping the Government wires?) It recorded converastions between parent and child. It even recorded a quarrel between husband and wife. As an increment it learned of an affair between Judith Coplon and a department attorney. All conversations of the innocent families and their friends were intercepted and recorded.

An attendant evil lies in the inexorable fact that all wire-tapping is drag-net in character. The price? The price for what? A heavy price for nothing. An American citizen can hardly point with pride.

The excuse? The FBI is catching traitors by wire-tapping. Name one! And at the same time disclose the hundreds of tappers utilizing this underground dragnet.

If one traitor could be named, the country would still be faced with the question as to whether it is willing to pay the price in the basic human liberties, in the freedom from unwarranted search and seizures, in the sanctity of the home, in the freedom from the stealth and secrecy of underground snoopers, in the preservation of every basic confidential relation known to law, husband and wife, parent and child, minister and parishioner, doctor and patient, lawyer and client. The right of privacy and the assurance of that privacy in day-to-day communications on social and on business matters—indeed the whole theory of freedom of communication—is at stake.

THE PERVASIVE fear of a lack of privacy in private communications is hardly a wholesome by-product of this widespread practice.

The by-products are manifold. Perhaps no other governmental activity and inactivity so fertilizes the breeding ground of crime itself. Government trained experts became private wire-tappers. Here extortion runs rampant. Note the triangle of wire-tapping and corruption involving the madam of a call-house, the Los Angeles police and Mickey Cohen. Note the New York City scandals involving professionals. Even the record of official New York taps shows 95 percent involve gambling, bookmaking, prostitution, the richest field for blackmail and extortion.

This is no isolated case. The practice is widespread. At this one main source of violation, one has to glance at only a few FBI reports from its thousands of investigations to envision roughly the tremendous scope and intensity of its wire-tapping.

It may be an old-fashioned idea, but I venture to suggest that public officers are under a duty to account to the public. Secrecy at the seat of power both corrupts and endangers. There is no private right at the seat of Government; there is only a public duty. Little wonder that administrators who, failing to enforce and themselves nullifying a congressional mandate, take steps to defeat a congressional investigation or other form of public accounting. Illegality breeds illegality, the history of other crimes demonstrates. Thus when called upon to produce the records of the taps in New York the FBI responded that pursuant to order these Government records had been destroyed. This is forbidden by 18 United States Code 2071 and 44 U. S. C. A. 366-369.

EXPERIENCE leads me to anticipate the counterreference to certain "opinions" of earlier Attorneys General. The Nardone cases held that Government agents had no greater legal right than private citizens. The court branded the taps as an "unlawful" source and as a "poisonous tree." By wishful thinking these "opinions" of prior Attorneys General declare that the FBI may tap (but may not divulge to any person) because everybody is free to tap.

Incongruity is patent. Superficially this is hinged upon the wording of Section 605 of the Federal Communications Act, which forbids all interceptions and divulgences to any person." (In the Weiss case the Supreme Court held this prohibition applicable to local as well as interstate calls.) As the legislative history shows, many employes of communications companies have the duty to intercept and handle messages. By seizing upon the conjunctive and, the FBI endeavors to come under the umbrella of those employes under a duty to intercept.

Meanwhile the language of the Supreme Court branding the tapping an unlawful and as a "poisonous tree" is ignored. Since the FBI has no greater rights than citizens, everybody is squeezed under this frail umbrella. And everybody is free to tap everybody's wire.

This is hardly an artful dodge as to mere tapping. Were it of real force, and since every telephone instrument is part of an interstate system, the tapper would run head-on into the following clear language: "No person not being entitled thereto shall receive . . . any interstate . . . communication by wire or radio and use the same for his own benefit or for the benefit of another not entitled thereto."

The simple fact admitted is that, in any event, the statute forbids the divulgence of any communication to any person. Every FBI tap is divulged to numerous persons, and that divulgence flies into the teeth of the statute at each and every step as the information moves from one person to another.

THIS IS a good law carefully designed to protect the citizen against the extortionist on the one hand and the violation of his sacred liberties by overzealous prosecutors on the other. The illegal practice thrives upon a stealth and secrecy unbecoming to a Government of freemen. The Supreme Court has rejected wire-tap evidence as "inconsistent with ethical standards and destructive of personal liberty." Our fathers consciously chose the risk that an occasional crime would go unpunished the better to insure the basic freedoms of all. Mr. Justice Holmes has said: "I think it a less evil that some criminals should escape than that the Government should play an ignoble part."

The case was well summed up by Mr. Justice Brandeis: " . . . The evil incident to invasion of the privacy of the telephone is far greater than that involved in tampering with the mails. Whenever a telephone line is tapped, the privacy of the persons at both ends of the line is invaded and all conversations between them upon any subject, and although proper, confidential and privileged, may be overheard. Moreover, the tapping of one man's telephone line involves the tapping of the telephone of every other person whom he may call or who may call him. As a means of espionage, writs of assistance and general warrants are but puny instruments of tyranny and oppression when compared with wire-tapping."

" . . . it is also immaterial that the intrusion was in aid of law enforcement. Experience should teach us to be most on our guard to protect liberty when the Government's purposes are beneficent. Men born to freedom are naturally alert to repel invasion of their liberty by evil-minded rulers. The greatest dangers to liberty lurk in insidious encroachment by men of zeal, well-meaning but without understanding."

THE PRESENT Attorney General is not responsible for the long train of past activities in the department. He assured me that this problem will be discussed with congressional committees. But this running sore in the body politic must be cleaned up. If it is not to be cleaned up, no quiet discussion will suffice. The Congress is entitled to know all the ugly facts and the public is entitled to know that they will be exposed to the pitiless glare of publicity. Especially in a period of hysteria the forum should be open to those citizens who prize the freedom of all more than the excess zeal of misguided prosecutors.

It were unfortunate that any department of our Government should so far lose its sense of moral and legal responsibility. The Teapot Dome scandals were the subject of prosecution. But helpless is the public when the law-enforcement agency violates the law and degrades the very processes of Government itself. In such an instance stands the Congress as the only safeguard of the people. In all sincerity I submit that some way must be found to restore decency and responsibility in the exercise of governmental authority. For, in truth, "there is no liberty save in responsibility."

Campbell Asks Chair for Killer Of Young Wife

By Bill Brinkley

Post Reporter

Nineteen-year-old Mrs. Nina Campbell wanted an abortion because the new child would have come too soon after her last one, who was 8 months old, her husband said yesterday.

"The fellow that killed my wife," Carlton Campbell, 20, exclaimed bitterly of the alleged abortionist, "I hope he gets the chair! I hope the Lord repays him!"

The young husband had just come from spending an hour in the Chambers funeral home arranging for the burial of the girl-wife whose body was found in the apartment of a Children's Hospital nursing executive.

A 44-year-old drapery salesman had confessed "beginning" the abortion which killed her. But unexplained was the obvious sadism police said was practiced on the monstrously-beaten body of the blonde and blue-eyed 125-pound woman; 16 teeth marks and contusions on the left arm alone . . . "a pure act of sadism, one of the worst," said detectives.

Meeting Revealed

In this regard Campbell revealed a dramatic meeting he said took place at police headquarters between himself and the charged abortionist, Ralph W. Myers.

"Why did you beat her?" Campbell said he shouted at Myers. "Why did you kill her—why did you do it? Why did you bite her, why. . ."

Myers, he said, answered not a word.

He told of a curious thing done by Mrs. Campbell when she left the fateful evening to get the abortion, after telling her husband—according to him—that she was going to a movie.

All Dressed Up

"She went all dressed up," he said. "Really new clothes—new dress, new shoes, new pocketbook, new just about all over."

He cited the new clothes as evidence his wife was not contemplating an abortion because of any financial stress. Also, he said, he had bought her a new television set lately. His salary as a chain-store clerk after deductions, he said, was $62.10.

Nina, he said "really loved children" and they had had no domestic trouble since theirs came—

Husband and Daughter . . .

Linda, age 2 years, and Larry, 3 months.

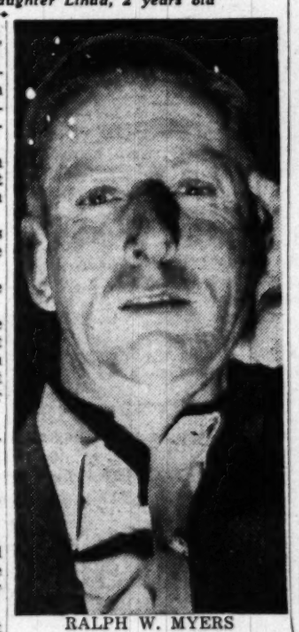
Campbell told a story of childhood romance beginning when Nina was 5 and he 6 and culminating in their high school elopement.

"When we were in the fifth grade I stole mom's engagement and wedding rings and gave them to Nina.

"When she was 15 and I was 16 we ran away . . . we eloped, we got married."

He paused and staring at the pavement added:

"She was young and she made mistakes and I did, too. I want to say . . . I don't know if you can put it here . . . I want to say about this empty space in my heart for her . . ."



RALPH W. MYERS

Charged with abortion

Myers Admits Operation 'Start' ed to piece together a coherent story of events leading up to and following Mrs. Campbell's death. Only one link was lacking, police said. That was—how was the savage beating and biting inflicted on the young victim?

Developments yesterday were:

1. At 4 a. m. after hours of questioning, Myers finally admitted to police he "had started to" perform an abortion, but "she had a heart attack and hit her head."

2. Miss Childs said Myers had made the same admission to her, Thursday, when he visited her to perfect a story about the dead girl in Miss Childs' apartment.

3. Mrs. Mabel Earnshaw, aunt of Mrs. Campbell's husband, told police she had arranged with Myers to perform the abortion, for $50, and took Mrs. Campbell to the Fairmont st. apartment Wednesday night for the operation.

4. Clinton Barnes, 60, janitor of the Fairmont st. apartment, identified Myers as a man he saw apparently drunk, sitting on the floor outside the door of Miss Childs' apartment about 1 a. m., Thursday. This, according to the autopsy results, was about the time Mrs. Campbell died.

5. Miss Childs told police she was aware that Myers had a previous record for abortion. He pleaded guilty to such a charge in Arlington, in 1945. Sentence was withheld and he was given 2 years' probation.

6. Neighbors of the dapper Myers said he lived quietly at 2110 N. Lincoln st., Arlington, with his wife and three children but "didn't always come home at night."

7. Police officials said the case will be brought to attention of a congressional committee investigating crime in the District of Columbia as an instance of inadequacy in laws here.

8. Mrs. Campbell's 20-year-old husband with whom she "sweethearted" since childhood, began sorrowfully to make funeral arrangements for her. These were not completed last night. They lived at 4800 O st., Hillside, Md.

Q. Myers continued a steadfast denial to police that he committed the abortion on Mrs Campbell, insisting that he "started to" but did not do it because she had a heart attack.

Mrs. Earnshaw, 29 of 1811 23d st. se., appeared voluntarily at police headquarters yesterday with her husband, William Earnshaw, and made a voluntary statement to police, according to Capt. Jeremiah Flaherty, head of the police homicide squad.

She told Capt. Flaherty that about a year ago she heard from a girl friend that Myers performed abortions, and met him at that time.

Tuesday night, Mrs. Earnshaw told police, she telephoned Myers to see if he would perform the abortion for Mrs. Campbell and he agreed to do it Wednesday night at the Fairmont st. apartment, for $50.

Wednesday night, Mrs. Earnshaw said, Mrs. Campbell and her youthful husband came to the Earnshaw home. Then, she said, she and Mrs. Campbell left for Fairmont st., and Campbell stayed with Earnshaw.

They arrived at Fairmont st., and the apartment, Mrs. Earnshaw said, to find Miss Childs, Myers, and a man and woman she identified only as "Mike and Jo" in the place.

Captain Flaherty said Mrs. Earnshaw said that at no time was the question of abortion mentioned between her and Miss Childs. Mrs. Earnshaw told him, he said, that she took it for granted that Miss Childs knew the purpose of the visit.

Mrs. Earnshaw told Capt. Flaherty that Mrs. Campbell was to pay Myers for the operation, but so far as she knew, no money was paid. Police said no money was paid.

When Mrs. Campbell's beaten, bleeding body was found face-down on the floor in the place, it was clad in a slip, brassiere, and stockings. Her clothing and purse were in the apartment, police said.

At this point, police said that Mrs. Earnshaw's statement "tied in" with the story of Miss Childs.

Miss Childs told them of going back to the place, finding the unconscious girl, and trying to revive her. She made a statement, police said, that she left about 11 p. m., after warning him to call police and an ambulance. Myers told her, Miss Childs said to police, that the girl had had a heart attack.

She also told them, police said, that at this time Myers was "pretty drunk."

At 7 a. m., Thursday, Miss Childs told police, Myers telephoned her at the hospital and told her the girl had died and was in the apartment. At that time, she said, he asked her to call police, and "leave me out of it." He urged her, she told police, to say she loaned the key to Mrs. Campbell and that when she came home, she found the girl dead.

Miss Childs said she would not agree, and that at 11 a.m., Myers called again, and then came to the hospital at noon to see her.

It was at that time, Miss Childs said in her statement, that she asked Myers if he had performed an abortion, and he said he "had started to."

Capt. Robert V. Murray, assistant chief of detectives, said that "I don't believe there will be any more arrests. We are not looking for anyone else in the case."

Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police, yesterday commended "everyone who has worked on the case," for a "good fast job."

"That's what we need today," he said, "to solve crimes."

D. C. Abortion Law Fairly Soft

The District law covering abortions specifies lighter penalties than in many States, it was disclosed yesterday following the abortion death of 19-year-old Mrs. Nina Cogar Campbell.

Title 22-201 of the District Code, enacted by Congress March 3, 1901, provides a five-year maximum penalty upon conviction, if no death occurs. If death results, the penalty is an indeterminate sentence of 3 to 20 years.

In contrast with District law, Illinois statute says abortion is murder when death occurs. New York makes the crime first-degree manslaughter when the mother dies and an additional charge of second-degree manslaughter when the child dies, according to the law library of the Library of Congress.

In Maryland, a minimum sentence of three years is prescribed when death occurs, but maximum is at the discretion of the court and could be life.

Police Stalemated In Costello Death

Police are still stalemated in efforts to solve the abortion death December 13 of pert Jean Costello, 21-year-old Washington airline reservationist, Lieut. Jeremiah Flaherty, head of the police homicide squad said yesterday.

Detectives have a "good idea" who the doctor was who performed the abortion, presumably in Washington, and who her boy friend was, Flaherty observed.

But the girl, up to the moment of her death in a Boston hospital, steadily denied an illegal operation had been performed upon her and refused to give any information police requested in connection with her case.

Flaherty said "It's going to take a lot of hard detective work to crack this case—if we can, and we haven't given up by any means."

Striking Officer Gets Bethesda Man 60 Days

Charles E. King, 26, of 448 Grosvenor ln., Bethesda, Md., yesterday was sentenced to 60 days in jail for striking a policeman after pleading guilty to a simple assault charge.

REA Power

By Marquis Childs

Issues In Oklahoma Senate Race

THE OTHER day the Rural Electrification Administration announced that nearly 80 percent of all farms in the country now have electric power. That compares with about 11 percent in 1935, when REA was established and it is one of the witnesses of the revolution that has taken place in the past decade and a half. It is also one of the reasons the New Deal-Fair Deal Party goes on winning elections.

Childs

The argument can be made, of course, that this was a technological change bound to occur even if there had been no Government intervention. But the fact remains that only 1 out of 10 farms was getting electric power from a central generating station before the REA began to loan money to farm cooperatives to develop power systems.

Of the farms electrified since 1935, about 57 percent get their power from systems financed through REA. These are facts which no amount of angry rhetoric can erase.

The political link uniting the interests of these power users is that National Rural Electric Cooperative Association. While it is not a partisan political organization, the association is a potent force in protecting the interests of the 971 cooperatives that work with the REA.

JUST NOW in Oklahoma there is a significant example of what this vigilance means in terms of politics. Senator Elmer Thomas of that State—most recently in the news for his bumbling travels on the cocktail circuit in Europe—has brought down on his head the anger and resentment of REA co-ops in Oklahoma.

They accuse Thomas of playing the game of the big power companies in the Southwest. The reason is a questionnaire sent out to at least a million Oklahomans under Thomas' free senatorial franking privileges. Clyde Ellis, head of the Electric Cooperative Association, charges that the question was loaded to get the kind of answer on private vs. REA power that the private companies wanted.

The fight is over hydroelectric power to be produced by the Southwest Power Authority financed, of course, with Federal funds. The private companies would like to take that low-cost power and distribute it to farm and city users. The co-op association is demanding the right of REA cooperatives to build their own lines.

Twenty-six REA co-ops in Oklahoma serve more than 80,000 farm users. Their representatives are meeting in Tulsa to decide what steps to take to insure that farmers can go ahead and build their own power lines with money loaned by REA.

The likelihood in this instance is for a compromise. Executives of the Public Service Co. of Oklahoma have indicated that they would distribute power in rural areas at low rates where the company already has existing power lines, leaving the way open for co-ops in other areas.

THIS COMPROMISE would probably be acceptable to Representative A. S. (Mike) Monroney of Oklahoma, who has long taken an active interest in the development of Southwest Power and the REA co-ops. It would, Monroney has pointed out, avoid unnecessary duplication. It would be acceptable, too, to Speaker Sam Rayburn, whose attitude toward the Southwest Power Authority is that of a mother hen toward her favorite chick.

Monroney is to be Thomas' opponent in the Democratic primary in Oklahoma. He has frequently been tagged by that threadbare and much-abused label "liberal."

It seems to me more accurate to describe him as an independent. He has been for some New Deal legislation and he has opposed other proposals in accord with his own convictions. He is on the record, for example, in opposition to the Brannan farm plan and the compulsory health insurance scheme.

Thomas, at 73, is likely to find himself in serious trouble. For one thing he has made the voters laugh at him. They chuckled at his statement when he returned from Europe that he had spent $1500 of his own money to pay for cocktail parties and other entertainment. He has not been notorious for his generosity and, moreover, in dry Oklahoma cocktail parties are considered pretty sinful. One thing Thomas will have in his campaign and that is unlimited money, part of which will in all probability be provided by the utilities.

Then the farmer with electric light in his home and his cow barn is likely to think twice about returning Thomas to the Senate. The cohesion of those who have benefited and continue to benefit from Federal legislation is a powerful force in politics today. No amount of thundering denunciation will remove it.

Mack as he presents her with a $100 savings bond in appreciation of her work at All Souls Unitarian Church. She has worked 20 years at serving church dinners. The award was provided by the Unitarian Laymen's League

The Unitarian Laymen's League of All Souls' Church, 16th and Harvard sts. nw., is observing its thirtieth anniversary this week—and taking it in stride.

"We'll go on as we have before," said Homer Zopf of 2651 16th st. nw., president of the league. Our next meeting will be Thursday, February 2, with Senator Paul H. Douglas (D., Ill.) as guest speaker. New members are always welcome."

Zopf's announcement of the next meeting describes the pattern of the organization's past—meetings the first Thursdays of nine months of the year (none in the summer) with guest speakers.

"Twenty-five or 50 years from now," said the Rev. Dr. A. Powell Davies, pastor, "there will be those who sit where we sit tonight celebrating achievements we helped bring about.

The pastor, speaking at this past Thursday's meeting, alluded to the talks on contemporary problems at the meetings, followed by a question period.

Thursday's speaker was Tilford E. Dudley, member of the CIO-Political Action Committee, who spoke on "Labor's Role in National Politics."

Two anniversary features were: a brief talk by Rowland S. H. Dyer, of 3700 Massachusetts ave. nw., retired assistant general counsel of the Treasury Department, and president of the All Souls' league 25 years ago; and presentation of a $100 Treasury bond to Mrs. Morton E. Mack, of 1759 Hobart st. nw. The presentation was made by Justice Harold H. Burton of the Supreme Court, a league member.

Mrs. Mack, assisted by Mrs. John W. Adams, also a widow, of 3605 Van Ness st. nw. and other ladies of the church, have been in charge of the dinners served to the league for most of the past 20 years.

Dyer recalled the days 25 years ago when the league had about 130 members. Today it has 325 members, of whom about 140 were present Thursday night.

Among the old-timers present were: George B. L. Arner, Laurence C. Staples, Maj. A. M. Holcombe, Robert A. Young, Elmer C. Stewart, Comdr. Walter H. McWilliams, W. G. Riley, George A. Collier, Gershon Bradford, Leifur Magnusson, Karl Hoffman, Charles V. Hilton, W. H. Gannaway, Emery M. Foster, Dr. Truman Abbe, A. J. Brown, William A. Wheeler, Remick Ferguson, E. G. Czech Reds Oust AP, UP Reporters

Prague, Jan. 6 (AP).—Communist Czechoslovakia today expelled the four senior Western news correspondents, reducing Western press representation to four men.

Kasischke

Those expelled are Richard Kasischke, the Associated Press chief of bureau and Bob Roy Buckingham, senior United Press correspondent, both Americans; Miss Amber Bousouglou of the French press agency and Eric Hourne of Britain's Kemsley Newspapers.

They were charged with presenting an "unobjective" picture of Czechoslovakia to the West, failing to report all sides fairly, and having "connections" with reactionary Czechs.

The AP and UP challenged Bedrich Runge, deputy chief of the Foreign Ministry press department, to back up his accusations with specific examples. He declined.

Kasischke and Nate Polowetzky, who now will assume charge of the AP's Prague Bureau, asked if Soviet news agency, Tass, would have its representation halved. Officials replied they did not know.

This is not the first time Czechoslovakia has expelled Western newsmen, but it is the first time a group was expelled at once. It brought to 10 the number of reporters ousted in the past six months.

Correspondents were told the government has decided to limit foreign agencies in Prague to one foreign correspondent each. The four who will remain will represent the AP, UP, Reuters and the French Press agency.

basic sovereign right, and each government must make its own decision in the light of the situation as it sees it and of its own circumstances.

"It is the United States' position that recognition of a government in no way constitutes or implies approval of that government. This is a widely-held principle."

The British and American governments "agreed to disagree" over recognition as long ago as last September, when Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin was in Washington. At that time and repeatedly thereafter the State Department tried to persuade the British to delay their action, and Bevin gave private assurances that he would delay as long as he could.

The British Cabinet did not make up its mind until December 15, and left the precise date up to Bevin. But there were strong pressures on the British, notably the safety of their 300 million pounds' worth of investments in China, their close ties with China through their colony at Hongkong, and their need to push foreign trade to the utmost.

In the end these considerations outweighed the harm they knew would be done in Congress and the comfort it might give Russia to see the British and Americans apparently at odds.

On Capitol Hill Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), called the British decision "unfortunate," and Representative Walter H. Judd (R., Minn.), a long-time champion of the Chiang Kai-shek regime, repeated that the move might make it harder for Congress to go on helping the British.

But criticism came from leading Democrats as well. Chairman Clarence Cannon (D., Mo.), of the House Appropriations Committee said he was disappointed, and commented that "you can't compromise with evil."

Representative James P. Richards (D., S. C.), a member of the Foreign Affairs Committee, said it would take a lot of persuasion "to convince Congress that there should be further economic aid to Britain." He complained that Britain "plows her own furrow when it suits her selfish ends; she cooperates with the United States only when we are handing out dollars."

Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.), of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, defended Britain's right to recognize the Communists, and Chairman John Kee (D., W. Va.) of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said "we just can't rise up and condemn the British completely for this."

The American position, as stated by Secretary Acheson on Thursday, is that it is too early even to consider recognizing the Chinese Communists, and that he will recommend no decision on it without full consultation in advance with the congressional foreign policy committees.

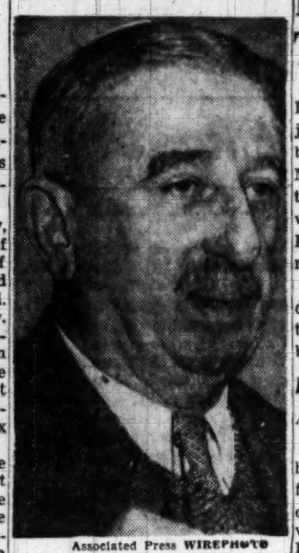
The British, on the other hand, will send an ambassador to Peking, the Communist capital, and may even use their navy to escort their merchant ships running the Nationalist blockade of Shanghai.

Lake Success, Jan. 6 (U.P.)—Dr. Tingfu F. Tsiang, chief of the Chinese Nationalist delegation, today summoned the first 1950 meeting of the U. N. Security Council for next Tuesday in an apparent effort to assume the presidency before his government is discredited by a majority of the 11-nation organ.

Already, five of the 11 nations on the Security Council have recognized the Communists—Norway, Britain, India, Yugoslavia, and Russia. Six still have relations with Chiang Kai-shek's regime—The United States, Cuba, Ecuador, Egypt, France, and, of course, China.

Secretary-General Trygve Lie made it clear the U. N. will take no action accrediting a permanent representative of the Chinese Communists until the world organization's major organs have declared themselves in favor of seating Mao Tze-tung's representative.

Forms 'Caretaker' Cabinet in Greece



Associated Press WIREPHOTO

JOHN THEOTOKIS, political veteran called upon by King Paul of Greece to form a "nonpolitical" cabinet, was sworn in as Premier of the "caretaker" cabinet as the King dissolved Parliament and scheduled general elections March 5. The action set a postwar record for settling Greek political crises. The dissolution of Parliament—a routine measure in advance of general election—assured Theotokis that his government would stand until a new regime could be chosen in the elections

Hungary Rejects U. N. Motions on Greek Children

Lake Success, Jan. 6 (NYHT).—Communist Hungary has refused to comply with a unanimous United Nations General Assembly resolution for return of exiled children to Greece, Secretary General Trygve Lie disclosed here today. Lie will talk next week with delegates of nations involved. According to International Red Cross reports as of last spring, there were 15,192 Greek children in Yugoslavia, 6400 in Romania, 3550 in Czechoslovakia, 3050 in Hungary and 500 in Poland.

Lie said Red Cross organizations informed him no Greek children have yet been returned, despite unanimous Assembly resolutions of both 1948 and 1949, and Red Cross groups are "encountering considerable difficulties."

India Offers No-War Pact To Pakistan

New Delhi, India, Jan. 6 (AP).—India has proposed to Pakistan a joint declaration outlawing war between the two countries, Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru said today. Nehru said the proposal was sent three weeks ago, but the Pakistani Government has not yet replied.

The draft suggests settlement of differences by conciliation, mediation, arbitration and judicial tribunals.

India-Pakistan Quarrel Arouses U. S. Concern

When Nehru was in Washington he solemnly assured American officials he would never let the quarrel with Pakistan develop into war. Last Wednesday, however, Deputy Prime Minister Patel said the dispute was "capable of provoking war" and told his people to be "prepared for the worst."

Yesterday, Secretary Acheson and other State Department officials expressed American concern to Pakistan's Foreign Minister, Sir Mohammed Zafrullah Khan, who came here from Lake Success to state his country's position.

Pakistan has accepted the plan of Gen. Andrew McNaughton, Canadian delegate on the Security Council, for withdrawal of Indian and Pakistan troops from the disputed state of Kashmir. But India has rejected this plan.

The United States still supports McNaughton's efforts, still professes hope the U.N. can find a solution, and still tries to show absolute impartiality between India and Pakistan. But officials here are increasingly worried.

The dispute far transcends the Kashmir issue and has become an economic war that is paralyzing trade and normal relations between the two countries.

Although American mediation has been talked of, there is no evidence the United States is ready yet to take such an active role in settling the quarrel.

Revolt Hinted Against Chiang

Hongkong, Jan. 6 (U.P.)—Formosan leaders today warned the islanders may revolt against the Chinese Nationalists' "reign of terror," adding an internal threat to the security of the island, already menaced by Communists invasion forces.

Thomas Liao, president of the Formosan League for Reemancipation, voiced the threat of "bloody reprisals" in a memorandum to Carlos P. Romulo, president of the U. N. General Assembly. Unless the U. N. aids the Formosans, he said, they will be forced to retaliate against the Chiang Kai-shek regime.

Liao heads a group of islanders organized for independence following Nationalist occupation after the war.

Liao contends the island still is part of the Japanese Empire pending signing of a peace treaty and technically is under U. N. jurisdiction.

dent's wife or children, but you treat them very often as if you had," she said.

Though the United States functions with a two-party system, she said, "when a man takes office, if he is conscientious, he serves all the people."

Referring to the Nation's role, she said "the United States has become the greatest democracy in the world," and "the country has to be strong and very sure of itself" in both economic and military areas.

"What we do is not what we do as citizens of the United States, but as citizens of a democracy," she said. "We are the moral and spiritual leaders of the world if we accept that leadership.

"If as a people we have a vision for the future, and the patience and persistence to work our lives into that pattern, then perhaps we have a chance to give our children a future greater than any of the past," she concluded.

Morton Thompson, describing the inception of "The Cry and the Covenant," said it resulted partly from his annoyance at not being made a technical sergeant in the Army.

"I was sitting in the bedroom, talking to my wife," said the former staff sergeant, "and I wanted to write about a martyr.

"My wife said, 'Have there been any doctors who were martyrs? Medicine always sells well.' At that moment a passage from Paul de Kruif's work flashed into my mind." It was about Ignaz Philipp Semmelweis, discoverer of the cause of childbed fever.

Book Took Five Years

Four years of research and a year of writing followed, Thompson said.

Describing Semmelweis as "the man who saved your mother when you were born," Thompson said, "it is impossible to tell how many great men we have had because of this man."

Karig, who spoke in lighter vein, described the impulses of authorship as "egomaniac—you have something on your mind and have to get it off—and economic—because, doggone it, you have to eat and feed a family until it can take over the writing burden."

The latter was an allusion to "The Pig in the Parlor," a recent book written jointly by the Karig family. Mrs. Karig and two of the children, Pattie and Keating, were in the audience.

Referring to "Victory in the Pacific," Karig said it completed the Battle Report series and "I wanted desperately to get it finished before the war started all over again and I had to go on to Volume VI."

Noyes Assured Of Funds for Aid to Youth

Montgomery County Juvenile Court Judge Alfred D. Noyes said yesterday he has been assured the court will receive sufficient funds to carry out its foster-home care program for children.

Noyes, who expressed fear Thursday that the program would have to be curtailed because of a shortage of funds, said County Manager Irving G. McNayr told him the money would be transferred from other county accounts if the welfare fund is depleted before the end of the fiscal year.

In the event the foster-home program costs more than is authorized in this year's budget, the county will have to get special permission from the State Welfare Department to use the additional funds, according to Welfare Director William E. Royer. Under the existing program, he pointed out, the State controls funds expended by the local department and provides matching grants.

GW, Spiders Clash

Hoyas, Terps Top Armory Twin Bill

Georgetown and Maryland renew their spirited neighborhood rivalry in the feature game of tonight's college basketball twin bill at the Armory.

George Washington U. opens it with Richmond in a Southern Conference test at 8 p. m.

The Hoyas, whose 5-game winning streak was shattered convincingly by LaSalle in Atlantic City, 90-58, will be favored over Maryland although two stars may miss the game.

Tommy O'Keefe, brilliant sharpshooter, and Frank Alagia, valuable driver, both are suffering ankle trouble. If they're out it won't hurt the Terp cause any.

Terps' Record Poor

Although Maryland has won only once in 10 starts, it could be dangerous. The Hoyas remember last year's two encounters. They won both but only by close scores. At College Park it was 56-52, then at the Armory it took a last-second shot by Capt. Ray Corley to subdue Flucie Stewart's boys, 53-51.

Lee Brawley, Bob Murray, Bernie Smith, Frank Armsworthy and Soph Dick Koffenberger are Maryland's principal hopes.

Georgetown's Johnny Brown will be depended upon to take up the scoring slack if O'Keefe's out.

GW, with a 4-3 victory, still has lost only one Conference game and that to N. C. State. Seeking its fourth loop win, it will be meeting a small Richmond team.

Tallest man is Soph Hal Sponsler, 6-foot-2 former Central High star here. Leading scorer for the visiting Spiders is Elmo Stephenson.

Actually, it's a triple-header tonight. At 6 p. m. Georgetown Frosh plays Maryland Frosh for the second time. The unbeaten Hilltopper yearlings won easily at College Park.

Staff Cassell's American U. Eagles play Virginia at Charlottesville tonight and Catholic U. plays at Randolph-Macon. V. M. I. meets Navy this afternoon.

Leaves Baylor

Woodruff New Florida Coach

Tallahassee, Fla., Jan. 6 (AP).—The State Board of Control tonight named Bob Woodruff, 34-year-old Baylor University football coach, as head coach and athletic director at the University of Florida.

He was signed to a seven-year contract at $17,000 per year.

Woodruff succeed Rayr ond (Bear) Wolf as the Gator football coach.

Wolf recently resigned under pressure after a disappointing season. He received $10,000 a year. year.

The former T ylor coach last season won eight of 10 games and handed the University of Wyoming its only defeat of the 1949 season.

Woodruff, a native of Georgia, played on the 1938 Tennessee team as a tackle.

He was assistant coach at Tennessee from 1939 to 1941, at West Point in 1944 and 1945 and at Georgia Tech in 1946 before he took over a Baylor squad in 1947 that had won only one game the previous season.

At Baylor, his team won five and lost five in 1947, won six and lost three in 1948 and won eight and lost two in 1949 for a three-year record of 19 wins and 10 losses and no ties.

Wilson, Tech Win Openers; Young Scores Record 27

By West McLean
Post Reporter

Woodrow Wilson and McKinley Tech won their games in the opening interhigh basketball doubleheader yesterday at Uline Arena, before 1300 fans.

Wilson, last year's runner-up, defeated Calvin Coolidge, 56-42, in the first game as Jim Young set an all-time league record by scoring 27 points.

In the second game, Junior Tom Megill registered 21 points as Tech thumped Eastern, 61-54. Eastern was ahead six different times, but Tech pulled in front to stay, 45-43, on Ray Brady's long set shot with six minutes left.

Wilson led throughout the first game with Don Scott scoring 14 of his 16 points in the first half. Young took up the Wilson scoring in the second half with 20 of his 27 points. Young was hitting mostly on hook shots.

Young Controls Boards

Young, 6-foot 3-inch senior, and burly Leo Speros, 6-foot-1, controlled the backboards for Wilson. Coolidge's little men like 5-foot 8-inch Kenny Luxenburg, and 5-foot 10-inch Don Eslin were unable to get up for the rebounds.

Eslin and Luxenburg scored a great deal of Coolidge's points on the front end of the fast break; but Jimmy Barrett, scoring on long shots, was high scorer with nine points.

A minor fistfight marred the nightcap. With two minutes left, Tech's Tony Sgro fouled Eastern's Harry Kallas, and the two started swinging. A few fans joined in, but the referees and coaches quickly broke it up.

Leahy Says Irish Probably Will Play Oklahoma in 1952

By The Associated Press

Notre Dame and Oklahoma, the Nation's two top collegiate football teams of 1949, will probably meet in 1952.

Irish Coach Frank Leahy said yesterday that he fully favors a meeting between his team and the Sooners in 1951 or 1952. It will probably be the latter because Oklahoma Coach Bud Wilkinson, who also favors the game, doesn't have any schedule opening until that season.

"Wilkinson really turned out a fine team at Oklahoma this year and will probably continue to do as long as he's there," Leahy said. "I hope we'll be able to get together. It would really be a fine idea—and maybe with the luck of the Irish and Polish we will be able to beat them."

Leahy, who is here to receive an award as "Coach of the Year" from the Touchdown Club, also quieted any forthcoming rumors about his entering the professional coaching ranks.

"I've never entertained any thought of coaching a pro team," he said. "I'm sure that my football coaching career will end at Notre Dame."

3 Expelled; Gregus, 2 Others on Probation

6 Wake Forest Stars Dropped for Cheating

WAKE FOREST, N. C., Jan. 6 (AP).—Wake Forest College lost six football players today after the sextet had been accused of cheating on pre-Christmas tests.

Three were expelled and three were placed on probation, but none will be eligible to play under the Gold and Black again, the Wake Forest student council announced.

Those expelled were All-Southern Guard Ray Cicia of Ansonia, Conn.; Tackle Bill George of Morrisville, Pa., and Reserve Tackle George Sniscak of Lansford, Pa., said a college spokesman.

Placed on probation were: All-Southern Halfback Bill Gregus of Toledo, Ohio; Bill Wilhimy, sub halfback from Ansonia, Conn., and Dick Medlecot, sub guard from Bethlehem, Pa.

All of the six had at least one more year of eligibility.

It was a staggering blow to the Deacon football team which had a disappointing season last fall after it had been touted in advance as one of the South's top grid powers. Coach D. C. (Peahead) Walker was out of town when the blow fell.

The expulsions and probations were announced at the college chapel program this morning by Lamar Caudle 3d of Washington, D. C., student government president. Caudle, who did not identify the six, said the action was taken by the student council last night.

A spokesman said the alleged cheating occurred during tests taken just before Christmas and were not all on the same course.

The six boys could not be reached immediately for comment, but friends said they all stoutly denied they had cheated. These friends also said the boys planned to appeal the action of the student council to the faculty executive committee.

Probation for the three players means they can remain at Wake Forest, but "they can never represent Wake Forest in any kind of activity while they are here.

Erdelatz Flies Home But Will Likely Be Back

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Eddie Erdelatz left National Airport last night bound for San Francisco, but it appeared likely that he will be back shortly to take over as head football coach at Navy.

Carefully shepherded by Capt. Howard Caldwell, Navy athletic director, Erdelatz reached the airport exactly one minute before departure time.

The arrival was calculated to shield Erdelatz from a barrage of leading questions.

After he left, Captain Caldwell did a bit of artful dodging himself.

Significantly, though, Caldwell pointed out that before Erdelatz took his present post with the San Francisco Forty-Niners, he came back and checked out with everyone at the Naval Academy.

"No phone calls for that boy," said Caldwell, "he came around personally. As a result, he had only a host of well-wishers at the Academy."

The courtesy calls he has to make appear to be the only reason he's going back unsigned. Erdelatz finished a three-day discussion marathon with Navy officials during which he carefully went over the entire football situation.

In a formal statement, Capt. Caldwell said, "Negotiations still are continuing. We have gone as far as we can at this time. Certain details remain to be resolved."

Erdelatz is no stranger at Annapolis. He was end coach from 1945 through 1947. Recently deposed George Sauer wanted him to stay on when he took over, but Erdelatz took the pro job.

Sauer resigned last week after Navy fired Assistants Vic Bradford and Bob Ingalls who came with him from Kansas.

Waterloo Club Battles Caps Here Tonight

The Caps meet Waterloo—not theirs, they hope—in a National Basketball Association game tonight at Uline Arena.

The Iowa Hawks will be making their only appearance of the season here. They're led by Harry Boykoff and Dick Mehen.

Boykoff, 6-foot-10 two-time All-America at St. John's of Brooklyn, is averaging 13.1 points. He still holds the single college scoring mark at Madison Square Garden with a 54-point performance.

Waterloo recently staged one of basketball's great rallies. The Hawks trailed favored Indianapolis by 10 points with only 58 seconds left. They proceeded to gain a tie in regulation time and win in an extra period, 97-93.

Mehen, unanimous all-star choice in the National Basketball League last year, is fifth leading scorer in the NBA with 47 points.

Johnny Norlander returns to action tonight to help the Caps snap a three-game losing streak. The Caps will be without the service of Johnny Mandic who was released by the local team and quickly picked up by Baltimore in a preliminary, the CYO Unlimited team meets Henderson Hall Marines.

Georgetown Branch Wins Boys Club Game

Georgetown Branch defeated Eastern Branch, 65-57, for the senior championship of the Washington Boys Club tournament yesterday at the club's gym. Wayne Brizendine sparked a last-quarter rally by Georgetown with 12 of his 15 points.

In the 105-pound finals, Police Boys Club No. 10 beat Alexandria Boys Club, 42-25, with Dick Hood high with 15 points.

Gwynn Park Wins

Gwynn Park won its third straight game last night on its home court, defeating Oxon Hill, 32-30. It was Oxon Hill's first game.

Southern Conference Adopts New 2-Minute Basketball Rule

A new two-minute basketball rule goes into effect tonight in the Southern Conference.

Thus the 16-team league follows the Big Ten and 12 New York City schools in junking the N. C. A. A. rule governing the last two minutes.

Duke and North Carolina State will play at Durham tonight under the new rules; so will George Washington and Richmond here at the Armory if the last two schools are notified officially.

Eddie Cameron, chairman of the Southern Conference basketball committee has been polling the 16 league coaches on the new rule. He has received nine votes in favor of the new rule and none against. The new rule is aimed at giving the trailing team a chance to get the ball in the last two minutes of the game.

The new rule imposes a penalty of two free throws against a defensive team which commits a foul in the last two minutes. If the second throw is missed, the ball is in play. If the second throw is made, the team which committed the foul, gets the ball.

Under the N.C.A.A. rule, all fouls in the last two minutes impose a double penalty against the team committing a foul. The fouled team gets (1) a free throw and (2) possession of the ball out of bounds at midcourt.

Snead's 71 3 Off Pace; Worsham Shoots 72

By Bob Myers

Los Angeles, Jan. 6 (AP).—Ben Hogan, golf's mechanical man who came back into the championship picture today, a little rusty and a little crusty.

Bantam Ben was launching a comeback in the $15,000 Los Angeles open and was good enough to make a fight all the way through a long first round of 18 holes at the Riviera Country Club.

He had par whipped in a miraculous exhibition for a nine-hole 34, but he tired on the final nine and wound up with a creditable 73, two shots over par and five strokes back of the pacesetter.

The leader after this first round was dark horse Ed Furgol of Royal Oaks, Mich., with a three under par 68 and a performance that in other years would have set the galleries buzzing.

But Furgol and the rest of the field were unknown players today. Ben Hogan, nearly killed in an auto-bus crackup 11 months ago, had come back to golf.

Crowd Follows Ben

No one in the gallery seemed to care what National Open Champion Cary Middlecoff did, although he wound up tied at 73 with Hogan, Jimmy Demaret, Jimmy Turnesa and several others.

Even Sam Snead was all but ignored as he toured around in 71 strokes, the same as Bob Hamilton, Otto Greiner, Jim Ferrier and other familiar names of the touring pros. Lew Worsham of Washington, D. C., had a 33-39—72.

But this was Hogan's day on Hogan's course—the same Riviera where he won the national open in 1948, where he scored two of his three triumphs in this richest of the winter golf tourneys.

Hogan wasn't quite the same Hogan. His irons cracked like a rifle in the sunshine. He appeared the same cool Hogan as ever but he was off on the greens.

An occasional airplane rumbled overhead. The old Hogan wouldn't have noticed. There was a voice in the stillness beside one tee. Hogan was disturbed, and then he pulled his shot off into the rough.

The photographers worried him, more so than ever. Once he objected. One cameraman thought he heard Ben say he'd quit if the cameras didn't quit. Hogan denied this afterward. He explained he meant he couldn't shoot while the cameras were shooting.

Opens With Typical Drive

For 12 holes Ben outdrove Bulla and Monti. Then he began to tire. On the thirteenth hole he went one down to par for the first time. He couldn't rally and finished with another bad hole on the eighteenth, hooking his tee shot to the side of a hill.

On other holes, however, it was Hogan as golfers know him.

Hogan admitted he was "sort of tired" at the finish. But he'll be back on deck for the second round tomorrow.

Hogan started his comeback to tournament golf, showing no outward evidence of the auto-bus crash that nearly killed him last February.

He waggled his driver momen-

Grimm Quits Cubs, Takes Dallas Job

Chicago, Jan. 6 (U.P.).—Charlie Grimm, twice manager of the Chicago Cubs, today quit his $25,000-a-year "briefcase" job as vice president of the club and accepted an offer to manage Dallas of the Texas League.

Grimm announced he had "definitely" accepted the Dallas job a few hours after submitting his Cub resignation to Owner P. K. Wrigley. Terms of the Dallas agreement will be settled at a later meeting with Dick Burnett, millionaire owner of the Texas club.

Grimm's resignation as Cub vice-president followed 20 years association with the club as an agile first baseman, field boss with three National League pennant triumphs and then uneasy executive.

Grimm first said he had no definite plans for the future, but later disclosed he had agreed to take the Dallas job.

Thus, once the formalities are over, Grimm will become the highest paid manager in minor league baseball.

Grimm Denies Friction

It was reported that Burnett offered Grimm a contract, during the winter baseball meetings in New York, calling for a flat salary of $25,000 annually plus a percentage of the gate receipts.

Dallas last season set a new Texas League attendance record of 404,000 and with Grimm as manager, Burnett figures it could be upped to 500,000 next season.

Grimm, at a press conference in the office of owner Wrigley, readily admitted that his swivel chair job griped him. That was why he was ready, at 51, to return again to a minor league managerial post.

"These hands," solemnly declared Grimm, "were never meant to carry a brief case."

Grimm emphatically told the gathered newsmen that there was no friction, as widely reported, between himself and Vice President Jimmy Gallagher.

Worcester, Mass., Jan. 6 (AP).—Dr. William T. Osmanski, head football coach at Holy Cross the last two seasons, resigned tonight following a three-day conference in Chicago with the Very Rev. John A. O'Brien, S.J., president of Holy Cross.

Announcement was made in a joint statement from Father O'Brien and Dr. Osmanski which was issued in Chicago and released here by Eugene F. Flynn, Holy Cross athletic director.

Fuqua Leads 2d Half Rally; Cadets Win

By Jules Loh

Little DeMatha of Hyattsville, a basketball school for only two years, sprang the major upset of the scholastic season last night by whipping Gonzaga, 49-44, in the second game of a Catholic League double-header.

In the first game, at the Catholic U. gym, defending league champion St. John's easily beat St. Anthony's, 66-30.

DeMatha turned the tide in its favor by invoking a backcourt pressing defense on Gonzaga early in the third quarter. DeMatha held the Eagles scorless for seven out of eight minutes in the last quarter.

Frank Fuqua of DeMatha took control of the backboards from Gonzaga's Mike Nolan in the second half and the Marylanders overcame the Eagles' 24-16 halftime lead. Fuqua wound up with 20 points.

Fred Richardson put DeMatha ahead to stay with five minutes left by breaking a 41-41 deadlock with a layup. Nolan wound up with 21 points for Gonzaga.

In the first game, Bill Mattingly was St. John's pace-setter with 16 points.

Hogan Has 73, Fires 34 on 1st 9, Then Tires

tarily and then, as of old, belted a high, hard one off the first tee at the Riviera Country Club—a true Hogan drive, straight down the fairway, Ben was given rousing applause as he stepped easily through the crowd to the tee. Hundreds were packed around the inclosure.

Announcer Scotty Chisolm, his bright plaid kilts a contrast to the usual Hogan costume of gray sweater and slacks and the custo-mary cap, told the crowd:

"This is a big event in the history of the Los Angeles Open. But at the request of Ben Hogan, I have been requested to limit his introduction to—

"Mr. Ben Hogan, on the first tee."

Again there was generous applause and Hogan, grinning at Scotty's diplomatic disobeyance, addressed the ball.

There was a tenseness in the gallery, easily sensed. Hogan got ready to swing. The whir of a spectator's movie camera from the crowd stopped him. After another address, he swung.

He said he was 10 or 15 pounds overweight, but it was hardly apparent. His legs, he said, give him the most concern. A blood clot developed after the surgery that followed the accident. But, leg cramps or not, Hogan was hoping to play the full 72 holes. His admirers were pulling for him to win this event for the fourth time.

At the start, Hogan seemed little jittery on the greens. He got his par five on the first hole but three-putted from 30 feet away and missed an eight-footer for a birdie.

He planked an iron shot dead to the pin on the 476-yard second hole, missing an eagle two by one foot. He tapped the ball for a birdie. His iron carried some 180 yards.

There was a log jam at the fourth hole, delaying play. Three threesomes, including Hogan's, were held back.

A bystander offered Hogan a spectator's seat. He declined, and stood for several minutes until he spotted a place on the player's bench at the tee.

He got par four on the third but missed a 6-foot putt for a birdie. He shot par on the fourth but again got the green jitters on No. 5, three-putting the hole after narrowly missing an easy 2-footer.

A roar went up from the gallery back on the tree-bordered sixth. Hogan had sunk a 12-footer for a birdie two, and was again one-under par at this stage.

He held this through the next two holes but had to scramble on No. 7. His tee shot went to the left, just 6-feet in bounds, and he had to shoot out under low-hanging tree branches. He was wide to the green but chipped up nicely and holed out a 3-footer. Hogan tok a par four on the ninth and wound up the first nine holes with a one under par 34. His partners, Bulla and Monti, each a37.

Most of the gallery of 9000 were following the Hogan threesome as it made the turn.

Hogan putted long on the tenth carpet, some 30 feet, but the ball died 2 feet from the cup. Then a moan went up. He missed the putt. He took a one over par five on the hole.

Again on the eleventh he barely missed a 6-foot putt for a birdie and took a par five, and on No. 12 he was down in a regulation four strokes.

Hogan stood on the thirteenth tee. He swung. His right knee seemed to buckle midway in the stroke. The ball sliced into the rough of an eucalyptus grove. The gallery gasped at the apparent give away of the knee. Ben merely smiled. By this time he seemed to be having trouble with his legs, and favored his left leg.

He recovered nicely with a shot that traveled between a narrow space between two trees, but was short to the green. He got on safely and took two putts to get down, and a one over par five for the hole. At that he was lucky.

Hogan was even with par from the fourteenth through the six-teenth but escaped serious trouble on the fifteenth when his tee shot struck a woman spectator. He pitched up on his third and rammed home a 20-foot putt for a four. On 16 he putted from 15 feet away and missed a birdie two by 3 inches.

Hogan got par five on the seven-teenth but hooked his tee shot on the sixteenth to the side of a hill. He took three to get on the green and two to get down.

And Mr. Hogan had a two-over par 34, 39—73 for the first round of his comeback.

One on the Aisle—

Theater Guild Has the Floor

By Richard L. Coe

THERESA HELBURN, brisk, sharp-eyed codirector of The Theater Guild, talks of her organization's subscription problems, the road and upcoming productions:

"To send plays on tour of 20-odd subscription cities we've always had to depend on the cooperation of other producers for half the plays we send out. Since we average five productions in New York each season, it would be impossible to send out Guild players exclusively.

"This year is going considerably better than last. Our Baltimore subscribers will be getting Irene Selznick's production of 'A Streetcar Named Desire' next Monday night. In Philadelphia, Alfred de Liagre's production of 'The Madwoman of Chaillot' starts a tour of our subscribers, including Baltimore's. Sarah Churchill has just completed a tour of our cities in 'The Philadelphia Story.' Cheryl Crawford's 'Brigadoon' has been playing to some of our audiences.

"Those are offerings of other producers sold in advance by our subscription plan. Under our own banner we've had a tour of some cities by Katharine Hepburn in 'As You Like It' and 'Arms and the Girl' now is touring Philadelphia and Boston, both before coming into New York.

"Last season, as you've written, we did have our troubles. The plays of other producers which we sent out under our subscription plan closed, because of bad business, before a circuit of our cities could be completed. These included 'Command Decision,' 'The Play's the Thing' and 'Happy Birthday.' There was nothing we could do about keeping these on and the result was we had no choice but to refund our subscribers' money.

"As for your Washington situation, we are supporting ANTA's effort to restore the Belasco and have reached an agreement with them should the playhouse become available.

The Lunts Regret

"Your recollection that the Lunts had promised to play Washington this season in a tent if necessary is perfectly correct, but in all fairness an explanation is in order as to why they did not.

"Because of Alfred's illness, it was necessary to postpone the play one month and to make the out-of-town work as light as possible. Only Boston saw it after last spring's tour. At the time we planned on the tent, we hoped for an early enough date as to make such a trick plausible. The Lunts were indeed disappointed.

"We have great hopes for our latest play in the rehearsal stages, William Inge's 'Come Back, Little Sheba.' This was tried out last summer at Westport, in accordance with the Langners' aim of using the country playhouse for experiments in new writing and acting talents. Shirley Booth and Sidney Blackmer are now rehearsing the roles for which they got great acclaim last summer."

Thus Miss Helburn. Her pride in the Guild's thirtieth year is heartily justifiable, for no matter how many strikes and errors an impatient sideliner may sight, the fact remains that the Guild keeps in the ball game.

LONDON VISITOR: "Washington is indeed beautiful and exciting. But I can scarcely believe I'm in a great world capital. You have no theater. Yet, it is the first of all the arts." . . . What makes the lady's question the more pointed is that she is Patricia Ainley, daughter of England's great actor-manager, Henry Ainley, whose distinguished career covers five columns of Who's Who . . . New York Hotel Drilling for Water In Its Cellar

New York, Jan. 6 (NYHT).—The Ambassador Hotel, on Park Avenue, is drilling for water in its cellar in an effort to cut its consumption of city water during the shortage.

William R. Brown, manager, said today that the first two wells that have been drilled have been "dusters," but he hopes to strike water on a third to be started Saturday.

The Ambassador is on the site of the old Schaefer Brewery, which used well water in brewing beer at the turn of the century.

The United Press reported all swimming pools and ice skating rinks using water were ordered closed today and restrictions were imposed on Turkish and Russian baths.

GPO: A decision on salary boosts for the 3000 per diem employes of the Government Printing Office here is slated to be made next week.

The Deviny offer ranged from 4 to 16 cents an hour for the 12 craft unions. The offer was based on the average wage paid the different employes in 25 representative cities.

PUNCH CARD: The Federal Personnel Council will propose higher standards for the Government's punch card operators. Its recommendation will go to the Civil Service Commission. The council plan, if adopted, could easily result in higher starting salaries for punch-card operators.

Arts Board Approves Designs for 3 Libraries

1-Story Structures Planned for Benning, Cleveland Park And Anacostia

The Fine Arts Commission yesterday approved the design for three branch libraries to be located in Cleveland Park, Benning and Anacostia.

The buildings will be one-story high and built in contemporary style with large windows. This marks a departure from usual two-story structures of Georgian design, Librarian Ralph L. Thompson said last night.

The Cleveland Park building is to be built on Connecticut ave. between Newark and Macomb sts. nw., replacing part-time facilities in the John Eaton School.

The Anacostia structure is planned for Good Hope rd. near 18th st. se. and will replace rented quarters in a nearby store building.

The Benning branch will be on Benning rd. just east of Minnesota ave. ne. At present no library facilities are located in the section.

The buildings are expected to cost about $250,000 each, but Congress has not yet appropriated the funds.

The Fine Arts Commission also gave preliminary approval to the design for a one-story substation of the Potomac Electric Power Co. located near the Dalecarlia Reservoir.

In the afternoon the commission members inspected alterations at the Capitol and said they were "well pleased" with the changes, H. P. Caemmerer, secretary, said.

Two Are Hurt As Milk Truck Turns Over

A District milk truck driver and his helper were injured yesterday when their truck overturned on Landover rd. in Prince Georges County, about half a mile west of Palmer highway.

Most seriously injured was the driver, Joseph Starkey, 35, 1000 C st. ne., who suffered possible fractures of both legs when the cargo of heavy milk cases shifted as the truck overturned. His helper, John France, 30, 1219 Holbrook ter. ne., suffered a possible fracture of the right arm and back injuries.

Prince Georges County police said France was pinned in the cab of the truck and had to be freed by members of the Bladensburg Rescue Squad, assisted by passersby.

Both men were admitted to Prince Georges General Hospital at Cheverly.

In other accidents yesterday, a 47-year-old man and a child, 5, were injured by cars. In neither case was the driver charged.

Clyde C. Smith of 318 14th st. se., a clerk, was struck about 8:25 p. m. on 11th st. se., by a car which police say was driven by Dr. Isabelle V. Kendig, 60, of Ashton, Md., a psychologist at St. Elizabeths Hospital. Smith was admitted to Casualty Hospital with a leg fracture and head injuries.

The youngster, Roy E. Ferguson, jr., son of Capt. and Mrs. Roy E. Ferguson of 1010 Barnaby Terrace, se., was hit in his home block about 5 p. m. Police reported he ran in front of a car driven by Homer J. Winyall, 52, of Raleigh, N. C. He was admitted to Bolling Field Hospital with a possible head injury.

Meanwhile Patricia Ann Carey, 8-year-old daughter of CIO Secretary-Treasurer James B. Carey, was reported still in critical condition at Washington Sanitarium last night from injuries she received when she was struck by an automobile in Silver Spring Thursday while on her way to St. Michael's School.

5 Are Arrested In Vice Raid On Apartment

Five persons were arrested early yesterday in a vice squad raid on an apartment at 1015 N st. nw.

Charged with operating a disorderly house was Patricia Davis, 28, of the N st. address. She was ordered held under $1000 bond for a jury trial February 9.

Mrs. Davis along with the four other persons, was also charged with vagrancy. The four were: Beulah H. Jacobs, 42, of 1416 R st. nw.; Patricia M. Stultz, 28, of 2226 Shannon pl. se.; Sally Williams, 28, of the N st. address and William V. Gray, 20, of 937 M st. nw.

Mrs. Williams posted $100 collateral. Bond was set at $300 each for the other four. All of the cases were continued to February 9.

Police said there were about 15 men in the apartment, when they raided it. They said they had had the place under observation for about 10 days.

Hershey Drive Chairman

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of selective service, has accepted the chairmanship of the annual drive of the Montgomery County Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Bastian Named Sesqui Counsel; Operations Interest Rep. Taber

Walter M. Bastian was named general counsel for the National Capital Sesquicentennial Commission at a meeting of the executive committee yesterday.

His appointment was not related to the current investigation of commission operations, Joseph C. McGarraghy, committee chairman, said.

Earlier yesterday, Representative John Taber (R., N. Y.), announced he intended to take a good look at the operations of the commission. He said he might introduce legislation next week to restrict the three-million-dollar fund granted the commission.

Taber's statement came as the FBI investigated reports that "kickback" deals have been suggested by persons near the commission.

Meanwhile, at commission headquarters, a plaster model of the medal which will be struck in commemoration of the 150th anniversary of the Federal City went on display.

The medal was designed by Thomas Hudson Jones of 3612 O st. nw.,

The medal will be made of a zinc alloy and sell for $1. Other medals, cast in silver, will call for five dollars, Edward Boykin, centennial director said.

Prince's Wife Fights Will Of Father

Mrs. Elizabeth de Hesse, wife of Prince Christian of Hesse, yesterday opened battle in District Court for the estate of her father, the late Richard Reid Rogers.

She asked in a petition for letters of administration that the wills he left be declared invalid and refused for probate and that the court declare he died intestate.

One of the wills she submitted with her petition was dated November 16, 1948 and left the bulk of his $495,490 estate to her four children. The will provided that one-fourth of the estate go to each of her sons, Richard de Hesse and Waldemore de Hesse, both of Houston, Tex., and that the remaining two fourths be held in trust for each of her daughters, Miss Augusta de Hesse of France, and Miss Olga de Hesse, of Switzerland.

On the same day that will was made, however, her father made another will, which was marked superseded, according to Mrs. de Hesse's petition. She also declared in the petition that her father had left four wills, dated earlier than November 16, 1948, all of which were cancelled or annulled.

Her father, a prominent New York and Washington attorney, died November 10 at the University Club in New York City.

Tie for First Place Marks Bridge Play

A tie for first place resulted in the Men's Pairs competition of the Northern Virginia Championship Bridge Tournament yesterday afternoon at the Roosevelt Hotel.

The first pair tied was J. G. Stone and Lewis Tubbs, and the other was John Moore and J. D. Boyd. Third place went to Louis Rosenfeld and James Suriock of Baltimore, the only winning pair from outside Washington at the opening afternoon session.

Winning pair among Women's Pair games was Mrs. Thomas Boyle and Mrs. M. R. Reddy. Second went to Mrs. Rose Robbins and Mrs. J. Krick, while third was taken by Mrs. Marianna Boschan and Miss Kathleen McNutt.

Last night mixed-pair competitions, took place but results will not be known until this morning.

Today open pairs will compete at afternoon and evening sessions; and Sunday, teams of four will compete in both afternoon and evening play.

John L. Laskey Chosen D. C. Bar Leader

John L. Laskey, 10 Farming dr., Chevy Chase, partner in the law firm of Laskey and Laskey, yesterday became president of the Bar Association of the District of Columbia.

Laskey

He succeeds Jerome F. Barnard, who died Monday.

With Laskey's elevation from the first vice presidency, Edward Bennett Williams was named to fill his place and Alfred Goldstein, a member of the board of directors, was named second vice president to succeed Williams. Bernard I. Nordlinger was elected to the board for the remainder of the fiscal year, ending in June.

Laskey, a graduate of the University of Michigan, received LL.B and LL.M degrees from Georgetown University. He had practiced law with his father, the late John E. Laskey, from 1935 to 1939.

He was principal attorney for the special committee of the House of Representatives to investigate the National Labor Relations Board in 1939. For the next four years, he was assistant United States attorney for the District of Columbia. He was then chief attorney and District enforcement attorney for the District of Columbia Office of Price Administration until 1945.

From 1937 to 1947 Laskey was professor of law at the Washington College of Law, of which he became president in 1948. He is a trustee of American University.

Accused of Bias

Axis Sally Judge Asked To Step Out

Judge Henry W. Edgerton of the United States Court of Appeals was asked yesterday to disqualify himself from the appeal of Mildred E. (Axis Sally) Gillars, convicted of treason.

The request came from James J. Laughlin, attorney for Miss Gillars who was sentenced to serve from 10 to 30 years in prison.

Laughlin accused Judge Edgerton of being in "thorough accord with the late President Roosevelt's policy of regimentation and near dictatorship." Because of this alleged partisanship, Laughlin said Edgerton could not fairly judge Miss Gillars, who Laughlin contended did no more than criticize the Roosevelt Administration.

The appeal will be heard Monday.

Baby-Sitter Who Beat Child Is Given Limit by Judge Tamm

A 44-year-old baby-sitter convicted of a brutal assault on an eight-month-old boy was sentenced yesterday to serve from eight months to two years in prison.

Judge Edward A. Tamm of District Court termed the offense "dastardly" in imposing the maximum sentence for the charge, cruelty to a child.

The convicted child beater is Mrs. Molly R. Chambliss of 735 New Jersey ave. nw. The victim was William J. Apple, jr., left in Mrs. Chambliss' care by his parents.

The child was later found alone on the house stairs, with its face and body badly bruised and cut.

Mrs. Chambliss contended she had been drinking moderately and dropped the child. She said she could remember nothing more about the incident.

Judge Tamm said the child's injuries were the result of a beating and not from dropping.

In another case Judge Matthew F. McGuire imposed a six-month jail term and a $1000 fine on a man who hasn't filed a Federal income tax return in 19 years.

The tax-evader is William B. (Billy) Fletcher, 40, a widely-known bootlegger here with a long criminal record.

Judge McGuire said that Fletcher's offense, failing to report a total of $13,000 in income for 1945 and 1946, was "studied and deliberate."

Alice C. Morton, 25, of 609 2d st. ne., received a 15-year to life prison sentence for second-degree murder. After an argument with a former boy friend, David F. Stephens, 618 8th st. ne., she walked the half mile to her home to get a pistol and back to his house where she shot him twice.

Curtis H. Shoemaker, 41, of 2520 14th st. nw., received four to 12 years in prison for manslaughter in the fatal shooting of Francis K. Arnold, 33, of 1444 Harvard st. nw.

Silas H. Hunter, 30, of 506 P st. nw., was given two years probation in the traffic death of Lucy Mayo, 49, of 2111 18th st. nw. Hunter originally was charged with manslaughter but was convicted of negligent homicide.

Ice Plant Slaying Is Admitted

Police Get Full Confession From Alexandrian in Death of Dodson

Alexandria police yesterday reported they obtained a full confession from Abe Lawson, 47, who was charged Wednesday with slaying Raymond B. Dodson, 49, refrigeration engineer, on November 29.

Lawson, an employe at the Mutual Ice Co., Payne st. extended, Alexandria, pleaded innocent to the murder charge at a preliminary hearing Thursday and was held without bond for grand jury action.

The refrigeration engineer was slugged and robbed as he left the ice plant about midnight November 28. He died a few hours later at Alexandria Hospital of a fractured skull.

Also charged with Dodson's death is Row Lee Browley, 47, 1013 Oronoco st., Alexandria. At the preliminary hearing, Browley testified Lawson slugged the engineer with a crowbar while he watched. He said Lawson gave him $20 of $50 he took from Dodson's wallet.

Inspector Russell A. Hawes, chief of Alexandria detectives, said Lawson of 704 N. Henry st., Alexandria, admitted hiding behind a water tank and then hitting Dodson with a crowbar as he emerged from the ice plant.

Doctors Get $25 Dues Bill Next Week

The District Medical Society next week will bill its 1500 active members $25 each for their new annual dues to the American Medical Association.

Doctors who fail or refuse to pay will be dropped from AMA membership rolls after one year, under the policy recently adopted.

They will not, however, automatically lose their membership in the local society, a spokesman said. This would require changes in the society's constitution or by-laws.

Unaffected are associate, honorary and affiliate members, including doctors in resident and interne training.

Separate billing was necessary, it was explained, because the local society sent out its own annual dues bill of $40 in December before the AMA acted. Next year the two dues will be incorporated in a single statement.

Previously, membership in the local society automatically carried with it membership in AMA.

Last month the governing body of AMA voted for the $25 annual dues, which will be used partly to finance opposition to "socialized medicine" and to help expand voluntary prepay health insurance and hospitalization plans.

Crime Blamed On Colleges And Schools

A Federal judge yesterday placed partial responsibility of the Nation's crime rate with its schools and colleges.

The jurist, Edward A. Tamm of District Court, said it would be better if educational institutions stressed "character" more and formal education less.

He made the statement in sentencing William R. MacIlrath, 64, of 4601 H st. sw. to prison for shooting a roomer and slugging the roomer's wife and sister-in-law in a dispute over $100 back rent allegedly due the defendant. The judge pointed to MacIlrath as an example of the unbalance in teaching.

MacIlrath, the judge said, went to an Indiana college for two years and to a Washington State University for another year to study journalism. He has written and published a number of magazine articles.

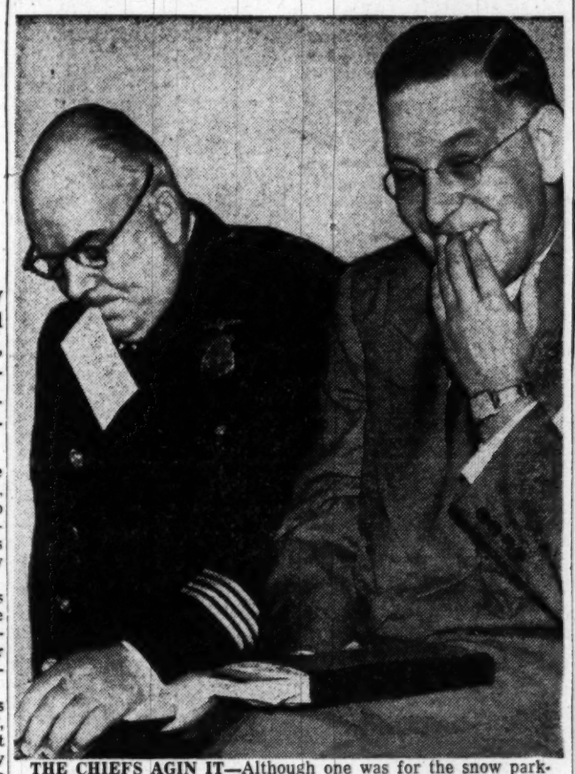
Snow No Mo'e . . .?



THE CHIEFS AGIN IT—Although one was for the snow parking ban and the other against it, Police Chief Robert J. Barrett (left) and Traffic Director George E. Keneipp, sit side-by-side at the hearing. Keneipp, who supported the ban, reversed himself as the hearing ended

Citizens One In Opposing D. C. Snow Parking Ban

Unanimous Stand Makes Keneipp Suggest Dropping Rule a Year or Two

No snow, so no snow parking ban.

That is what more than 25 citizens told the District Commissioners yesterday at their snow parking ban hearing. The Commissioners took their protest under advisement.

Xanten

The citizens were led by Maj. Robert J. Barrett, metropolitan police superintendent. He called the parking regulation a public hardship and said there had been an average of 1300 cases of violations the past three years.

"This," he said, "seems to be an extreme penalty to the public for the actual good it did in having the streets restricted to parking."

Major Barrett said he thought the regulation should be "rescinded entirely" or at least suspended a year.

Keneipp Reverses Stand

George E. Keneipp, director of vehicles and traffic and first witness to testify, declared he felt only a "small minority" was inconvenienced by the ban. He said he was "compelled to conclude there should be no relaxation" of it.

But he reversed himself at the end of the hearing.

"Since the citizens have expressed themselves so unanimously against the ban," he said, "I think we ought to try doing without it for a year, or possibly this year and the next. If the situation proves too bad, I think the citizens would be the first to come back and ask that the ban be replaced."

Four Officials for Continuance

The only persons who steadfastly favored the ban were William A. Xanten, director of the division of sanitation for the District, who is responsible for snow removal; Samuel R. Harrison, deputy director of the Highway Department; James O. Somerville, of the Public Utilities Commission; and Mason A. Butcher, traffic engineer of the Capital Transit Co.

Harrison said it was "impossible" to present an acurate appraisal of the probable damage to District streets if the ban were lifted. He also said successive snowfalls would pile up windrows of snow against parked cars, doubling and redoubling, with the result all traffic would be confined in a single lane."

Civic, Citizens Groups Agree

Xanten said cars parked at the curb during a snowstorm "unquestionably" hinder an effective snowplow job.

Herbert P. Leeman, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, asked that the ban be lifted "in the interests of the most people."

Leon A. Thompson, represesenting the Federation of Civic Associations, declared, "This is one time that the Federation of Civic Associations agrees with the Federation of Citizens Associations."

Laborer Hurt on Job

A 28-year-old laborer, working near a power crane on a Hyattsville construction project, suffered slight shock yesterday when the crane's boom struck an overhead electric wire. Prince Georges County police said Clarence Hamlin, 49 Defrees st. nw., was knocked down when he apparently contacted the crane just as the boom struck the wire at 40th and Longfellows sts. He was treated at Leland Memorial Hospital for shock and then released.

Civic Group May Go to Court In Cardozo High School Issue

Unsatisfactory action to relieve overcrowded Cardozo High School may result in a court suit to abolish segregation in District schools, the Federation of Civic Associations was told last night.

John B. Duncan, chairman of the Federation's education committee, said Negro groups have done all they can to urge the Board of Education to transfer Central High School to Negro students.

These groups, he said, have made "their last stab" in a series of newspaper advertisements presenting their case for the transfer of Central.

"Our Only Hope"

If the board decides against the transfer, Duncan said later, "we'll know our only hope rests with the Supreme Court."

The federation is already on record favoring a law suit for equilization of school facilities. Duncan said he will recommend that future court action be based on a demand not for "equalization" but for "integration."

The board is considering a proposal to relieve Cardozo by transferring Park View Elementary School to Negro status.

At last night's meeting in the District Building, the federation unanimously reiterated its opposition to the proposal.

On Duncan's recommendation, the federation voted $50 to the United Citizens Association for Educational Adequacy for All Children in the District of Columbia which, Duncan said, is spending about $1100 on newspaper ads.

President Thanked

The federation thanked President Truman for his advocacy of home rule and his "insistence on civil rights for all."

It also expressed appreciation over the District Commissioners' decision to build the new Anacostia River Bridge at East Capitol st.

President Woolsey W. Hall asked the federation's public utilities committee to make a study of the transit situation and the Capital Transit Co.'s statement that recent wage increases may result in a request for fare increases.

A letter of appreciation was addressed to the principal of the Washington Vocation School where the federation held its annual dinner last month.

Woman Charged With Perjury On Changing Pandering Story

A 36-year-old woman, whose sworn statements led to the arrest of her boy friend on charges of assault and pandering, yesterday was held for grand jury action on a perjury charge.

The defendant, Theodosia Laucier, told Municipal Court Judge Armond W. Scott she made the sworn statements because she was "mad at" William Henry Jackson, 26, of 815 N st. nw.

Jackson was arrested on a warrant issued by the United States Attorney's office after Mrs. Laucier swore out a complaint December 28 that he had beaten and kicked her two days earlier.

She also swore that he had forced her to engage in prostitution for four months.

When Jackson's case came to court yesterday, Mrs. Laucier took the stand as the complaining witness and denied her earlier statements. Judge Scott then ordered her held on the perjury charge. No bond was set, since she is serving a 30-day sentence at the Women's Reformatory, Occoquan, Va., for vagrancy. Jackson's cases were continued to today.

DR. ISAIAH BOWMAN
Heart ailment fatal

Baltimore, Jan. 6 (AP).—Dr. Isaiah Bowman, president emeritus of Johns Hopkins University and one of the world's foremost geographers, died at Johns Hopkins Hospital this morning. He was 71 on December 26.

The university's fifth president, Dr. Bowman retired on January 1, 1949, as president of Johns Hopkins, a post he had held since July 1, 1935.

He died at 8:20 a. m. of a heart attack. He was stricken at his home late yesterday afternoon and taken to the hospital about midnight.

Dr. Bowman was a close adviser to President Wilson when the World War I President advanced his League of Nations plan.

He gave similar help to President Roosevelt throughout World War II and the preliminary work on the United Nations.

Continued Activity

The onetime Michigan school teacher had not been idle since his retirement from Johns Hopkins. In recent months one of his main tasks was heading a commission that tried to find out what to do about restoring seafood resources in Chesapeake Bay.

This was an example of his many public services to Maryland while he was president of the university and while he also was sitting in higher councils on world problems. Ten years ago he headed a commission which blueprinted a reorganization of the State's government.

In recent months he served as chairman of the European Cooperation Administration's committee on overseas territories. He also was a member of Harvard's board of overseers.

One of his most recent chores was directing the Maryland unit of the committee for the Hoover Plan to reorganize the Federal Government. He also was working on a book.

His World War II activities included membership on the Policy Committee of the State Department, chairman of the Territorial Committee of the State Department, and special adviser to the Secretary of State.

He was a member of the American delegation to the Dumbarton Oaks Conference which formulated plans for the United Nations in 1944 and the San Francisco Conference which founded U. N. in 1945.

Dr. John Howard, his physician, said he had remained well and active until the first heart seizure at his home about 10:30 last night. At 1:30 a. m. he was taken to the hospital.

Mrs. Bowman, the former Cora Olive Goldthwait of Lynn, Mass., accompanied him to the hospital and stayed at the bedside. She returned home when he seemed to be resting comfortably this morning. He died when an artery closed at the heart—a coronary occlusion.

Canadian-Born

Dr. Bowman was born at Waterloo, Ontario, but when he was only eight weeks old his family moved to a log cabin in eastern Michigan.

He started teaching when he was 18 but continued his education with study at Michigan State Normal at Ypsilanti; Harvard, where he got his bachelor's degree, and Yale, where he got his doctor's degree in 1909 and continued as an assistant professor until 1945.

The list of his honors and his writings runs to several typewritten pages.

In addition to his wife, he leaves three children, Walter P. and Robert O. Bowman and Mrs. Olive Gerwig.

Gov. William P. Lane, jr., expressed the sympathy of Maryland on the death of Dr. Bowman today and lauded his "unceasing efforts in the cause of peace."

The Governor said in part: "Dr. Bowman's outstanding leadership in the field of education; his untiring public service to this State; and his unceasing efforts in the cause of peace have made our State, our country and the world a better place in which to live."

Speaking before a Local Government class, Carroll, an authority on municipal police departments, said that unless adequate salaries (above the $1700 a year paid in some localities) are given policemen, it is difficult for local officers to resist taking graft.

In the past 15 years, Carroll said, "there has been a shocking change in the law enforcement of the police departments of the country—a change for the better.

Much of the credit, he declared, should go to the FBI for the training it has given local officers.

Children to Be Guests At a Family Party of The Mississippi Group

By Nicha Souré

NO BABY-SITTING problems for the Mississippi State Society! Just bring along the children for they will be the honor guests at a family party of the society tonight. The young in years and the young in heart will meet at 8 p. m. at the Washington Club, 1701 K st. nw.

There will be trained dogs, magicians and jugglers to delight the guests. But the most important part of the program will be furnished by the children themselves.

Miss Nell Eastland, last year's Cherry Blossom Princess from the Magnolia State, will be the hostess at the party. On the program will be a trio of young pianists—Margaret Jane Stennis, daughter of Senator and Mrs. John C. Stennis; Marilyn Trent daughter of Dr. and Mrs. T. M. Trent; and Juin DeRamus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Huston DeRamus. Linda Cutting, a veteran actress of the television screen at the ripe old age of 10, will sing "Dreamer's Holiday." A tap dance by Kay Suttle, a Hawaiian hula dance by Billie Sue Best and a reading by Betty Jo Whitten will round out the program.

There will be square dancing, jitterbugging and plain old-fashioned ballroom dancing after the program. Miss Mary Fulton will preside at the punch bowl. For further information about the dance, call Holdren Holden Rhymes, president of the society, at North 1161.

TWO State societies will be dancing tonight at the Shoreham Hotel. The Georgians will meet in the west ballroom at 9 p. m. for a musical program, to be followed by dancing at 10 p. m. The New York State Society will honor the Department of Justice at their party in the main ballroom at 9:30 p. m.

WITH the Congressmen back in Washington, the West Virginia State Society is getting ready for big doings.

On January 14, the society will hold its first dance of the new year honoring the Congressmen from the home State. The annual congressional dance will be held in the new ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel with Dave McWilliams orchestra offering music for dancing.

Preceding the dance at the Shoreham, the society will honor a native son, Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson of Clarksburg, at a dinner in the Mayflower Hotel. Besides the congressional delegation, the Governor of West Virginia and Mrs. Okey Patteson will attend.

THE United Nations Club will be the scene of a reception today when the Florida State Society honors the Congressional delegation and their wives.

Refreshments will be served during the reception from 4 to 7 p. m. Membership cards and tickets for the dinner-dance on January 28 will be available at the reception.

THE next Oklahoma dance is slated for January 14 in the West ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel where an all-girl orchestra will play from 9 p. m. to 1 a. m.

PUT away your superstitions and come out for an evening of fun, advise the Bay Staters.

The first dance of the new year of the Massachusetts Society will be held on Friday the 13th at the Shoreham Hotel. Dave McWilliams and his orchestra will play for the dancing pleasure of the guests from 10 p. m. to 1 a. m. Admission will be free to members, with guest tickets available at the door.

REMEMBER Minnesota's fun-packed Paul Bunyan party last year?

Well, Paul Bunyan won't be here this year, but that doesn't mean the lumberjack party won't be every bit as much fun. The date is January 14, 9:30 p. m., in the Wardman Park Hotel.

Guests either will wear bright-colored shirts or formal or informal dress, to suit themselves. Dr. Ivan Booker will call for the square dancing and Barnee Lowe will provide both sweet and hot music for ballroom dancing.

Members may make reservations for tables of eight or more by calling Mrs. R. W. Stoebe at Jackson 8-9139.

IT'LL BE a "University Night" celebration for that far-away State of Nebraska on January 21.

The Nebraska State Society will join forces with the University of Nebraska Alumni Club of Washington for a party in the Continental Room of the Wardman Park Hotel, 10 p. m.

Dr. John D. Clark, economic adviser to President Truman and a former Nebraskan, will be the guest speaker at the annual University Charter Day dinner preceeding the dance. The dinner will be held at the Highlands Apartments, 1914 Connecticut ave. nw.

Clifford Sandahl, State society president, and William W. Spear, president of the Alumni Club, and John D. Becker, vice president, are in charge of arrangements. For further information call Jessie Stearns, Michigan 5600, extension 611, after 6 p. m.

When you go out tonight, reserve your copy of the Sunday Washington Post with your newsdealer. "This I Remember," by Eleanor Roosevelt starts tomorrow in The Washington Post.

Ask Anne

I see delightful frothy lingerie and evening dresses of nylon advertised. How dangerous are these things? A friend of mine was killed the night before Thanksgiving when the sleeve of her nylon negligee caught fire at an electric stove. Is there any way of knowing how inflammable certain pieces are?

B. H. O.

Nylon fiber is not considered any more inflammable than rayon or cotton fibers. As a matter of fact, it is usually considered less inflammable because when ignited it melts above the flame, the fabric breaks where it melts and drops the flame away from the rest of the fabric. On all except filmy fabrics, this usually stops the burning.

Filmy fabrics of nylon as well as rayon and cotton are much more inflammable than heavier fabrics made of the same fibers because there is so much more surface exposed to the air in relation to the amount of fiber. With such a relatively large supply of oxygen, thin fabrics burn in a flash making garments made of thin fabrics of all fibers much more combustible than heavier fabrics.

Tell C. A. C. (with the soap at her Motel) to get a used carton from her grocer that will hold the soap, pack it, label it "Soap" and address it to: War Relief Service, N. C. W. C. Warehouse, 5215 Flushing Avenue, Maspeth, Long Island, N. Y. Mark it "Express Collect" and call the express company to come get it. That soap will go overseas in a rush and be doled out to persons who will say fervently, "Oh, God bless those kind Americans."

Thank you for this information!

In regard to E. L. A.'s question about cleaning rubber dolls, I always clean dolls of all kinds with cold cream. Dip a clean white cloth in the cream, go over the doll, rubbing well; then wipe off with clean cloth. A very dirty doll may need a second bath of cold cream. R. B. C.

Thank you, R. B. C.!

Does any reader of your column know of a firm which makes a ventilated leather bunion shield similar to that formerly made by the Elastic Tip Co. of Boston, which firm has discontinued the manufacture of this article? M. P. H.

Can any of our readers give us this information?

You asked for a recipe for Sliced Lemon Pie, as requested by F. I. H. I am very happy to be of some assistance in this matter.

Sliced Lemon Pie

2 lemons (use only those with thin, tender skins)
2 cups sugar
pastry for a double pie crust
4 well beaten eggs

Slice lemons as thin as possible, including rind. Pour sugar over them and turn occasionally while making pastry so that sugar is well absorbed. Beat eggs well and stir gently into the sugar and lemon mixture. Pour into unbaked pie shell and cover with crust. Bake 450 degrees for 10 minutes, then reduce to 350 degrees and bake until knife comes out clean, about half to three-quarters of an hour. Meringue may be used in place of top crust. T. W.

Thank you, Mrs. T. W. of Hyattsville for sharing this recipe with us.

Red tempera color paint has been spilled on my beige living room rug. I washed it with rug shampoo, also tried to remove the remainder of the red stain with turpentine. There is still a large red stain on the rug. What do you suggest I do to remove the remainder of the stain?

G. D. L.

The best way to remove stain from a rug or any pile fabric is to mix a paint solvent—water in the case of tempera paints—into corn meal to form a moist paste. Rub it into the pile and let stand to absorb the soil. When the corn meal has dried, remove by brushing or using the vacuum sweeper. Repeat the process as long as the corn meal becomes discolored.

If this doesn't completely remove the stain, the remaining solution is to turn the job over to a professional rug cleaner. They have facilities for forcing water through the pile as well as the foundation fabric to completely remove the paint.

For B. A. D. who has troubles with thread, my sympathy because I've had the same experience. However, I found that mercerized thread sews perfectly where cotton and silk would break every few stitches. One brand comes in 800-yard spools at 35 cents. I have bought black, brown and white, the last in two sizes—size O which is about 40 and size OO-X which is like 60. I suppose it comes in other colors and sizes but I have had good luck recently with small spools of ordinary mercerized colored thread. I suppose it can be purchased wherever dressmaking supplies are sold.

For white buttonholes and buttons I use wax thread which does not knot. What I have is size 50, 125 yards to the spool and came from a local department store. I do not know if it comes in other colors and sizes. Incidentally, I once had an entire group of machine needles which were defective and which caused the thread to break. J. A. S.

Thank you for this suggestion which I am sure will be helpful to B. A. D.

I do wish to thank K. B. of Washington, H. E. S. of Takoma Park, T. M. of Frederick, Md.; E. E. C. of Brookville, Pa., who have sent recipes for Chip and Cherry Cake.

Some six months ago a fine recipe appeared in Parade for a large quantity of cookie mix to be made at a time and then a few cupsfull added to egg and milk for a dozen or so cookies at a time. I have used and liked the recipe very much, but it has been borrowed once too often and not returned. I hope you may print a copy of the recipe very soon. A. A. M.

Did any of you clip this recipe?

I am interested in learning slipcover and drape making, preferably in a public school. I hope to obtain gainful employment and also to fix my own slipcovers and drapes. I am a bit past middle age and haven't really worked before. I. V.

The Adult Educational Department of the District of Columbia Schools plans a course in making slip covers, drapes, etc., to start January 30. The class will meet one or two evenings a week—the exact evenings have not been decided as yet. There is no tuition for District residents, but there is a laboratory fee of about a dollar.

Registration will be on January 23, 25, and 26 at Central High School, 13th and Clifton, nw. There may also be a course taught at Coolidge Senior High, 5th and Tuckerman, nw.

Chambers A Dreamer, Doctor Says

New York, Jan. 6 (AP).—Whittaker Chambers, the Government's chief witness against Alger Hiss, was pictured by a psychiatrist today as a self-centered liar and dreamer who can't tell fact from fiction.

Dr. Carl A. L. Binger, Park ave. mental specialist, gave a detailed analysis of what he called Chambers' "bizarre behavior" to back up his opinion that the one-time $30,000-a-year editor is a "psychopathic personality."

Hiss' second perjury trial was adjourned during Dr. Binger's testimony because of a juror's illness. Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard said he hoped the trial could resume Monday.

Hiss, formerly a high State Department official, is accused of lying when he denied passing secret Government papers to Chambers for a prewar Soviet spy ring. A Federal grand jury believed Chambers when he said the papers were passed.

Dr. Binger, called by the defense, called Chambers a "pathological liar."

"This is something different from ordinary lying," he said. "It is living out or playing out a lie as if it were true."

Persons so afflicted, the psychiatrist said, are "under the influence of their imaginations, which may have no relation to reality."

Dr. Binger cited 20 instances in which Chambers has admitted on the witness stand that he lied. He said the stocky, 48-year-old Government witness lived under false names "before, while and—curiously enough—after he was a Communist."

And he said Chambers' hiding of microfilms in a pumpkin on his Westminister, Md., farm "is not the kind of behavior one would expect from a person in good mental health."

The psychiatrist said Chambers showed insensitivity typical of the "psychopath" when, years ago, he carried on a long-standing illicit relationship with a woman in his mother's home.

Still earlier, said Dr. Binger, Chambers wrote a play ridiculing Christ and published it at Christmas time.

"These people don't suffer. They make other people suffer," witness said.

Human Rights Issue Raised Anew by U. S.

By the United Press

The United States tried anew yesterday to bring to trial three Russian satellite nations—Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria—on charges of violating the "human rights" provision of their World War II peace treaties.

Diplomat authorities doubted the move would be any more successful than efforts of the past.

The United States repeatedly has charged the three nations with violating their pledges to uphold freedom of speech, religion and political affiliation. Each time the countries have rejected the charges and even have refused to recognize that any dispute exists between them and this country.

The United States today carried its campaign a step further under treaty provision which call for establishment of commissions to settle such disputes.

In notes to each of the governments, it named Prof. Edwin D. Dickinson of the University of Pennsylvania Law School, as the United States member of the proposed commissions.

It also asked the three governments to name their representatives and to consult with United States envoys on appointment of a neurtal member.

Similar notes were sent to the three states Thursday by Great Britain and Canada.

Maragon Says He's Innocent; Trial Feb. 20

John Maragon, Greek immigrant boy who became a White House habitue, pleaded innocent yesterday to four perjury charges growing out of his testimony before the Senate "five percenter" investigation.

Trial of Maragon was set for February 20 in District Court, with bond continued at $2000.

Maragon, who always denied influence-peddling but claimed to be a "good and close" friend of Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan, military aide to President Truman, startled the court audience when by mistake he gave the wrong plea.

Asked by the court how he pleaded, Maragon replied quickly, "Guilty."

He then shook his head, grinned and said, "I mean not guilty."

William Kehoe, Maragon's attorney, was given 10 days to file any special pleadings he deems proper.

The specific charges against Maragon say he lied when he said he had only one bank account, that he represented no private firms in their dealings with the Federal Government, that he borrowed $500 from his mother-in-law and that he was not privately employed when he went on a Government mission to Greece.

New Bridge Opening Ceremony on Jan. 14

The new South Capitol Street Bridge will open with a dedicatory ceremony Saturday, January 14, at 10 a. m., District Commissioners announced yesterday.

A change from the originally scheduled date of January 12 had been asked by a citizens' committee arranging the ceremony. The committee felt a better crowd would be assured on Saturday, and it was feared top District officials might be tied up at Congressional budget hearings on Thursday.

Counsel Assail CAB Report On Air Merger

One agency of the Civil Aeronautics Board came under sharp attack by another when the board's "public counsel" yesterday filed 11 exceptions to a recent CAB examiner's report recommending approval of the proposed merger between Pan American Airways and American Overseas air lines. The blast is believed to surpass anything of its nature in the board's history.

James L. Highsaw, jr., and William F. Kennedy, public counsel for the board, warned the CAB that the case record is the "ugliest . . . in over a decade of regulation" under the Civil Aeronautics Act. This fact, they added, had been largely concealed in the report prepared by Thomas L. Wrenn, assistant chief examiner for the CAB, and made public just before Christmas.

They charged "somebody gave false testimony." They said Examiner Wrenn had chosen to believe Juan T. Trippe, Pan American's president, rather than the conflicting testimony of six other witnesses. They added: "The examiner has failed to inform the board that the record contains contradictory testimony . . ."

The four major matters in which they found the examiner's report inadequate were those of the credibility of witnesses. "The nine-million-dollar fantasy" of mail pay which Trippe contended the Government would save annually by the proposed merger, the monopoly issue which public counsel contends is basically involved in the case and the adequacy of the trans-Atlantic air line rout pattern which would result if the CAB approved the merger.

Grange Head Scores Raids On Treasury

The merits of Federal support to farmers were argued sharply yesterday by a Congressional leader and the Master of the National Grange.

The speakers were Albert S. Goss, Master of the Grange, which has 830,000 members, and Representative Harold E. Cooley (D., N. C.), chairman of the House Agriculture Committee.

Speaking at a dinner given by the National Grange for delegates attending a Grange leaders' conference which opened yesterday in Washington, Goss alluded to the Brannan plan and said:

"The Grange is opposed to any plan which calls for going to the Federal Treasury to support our industry."

Goss gloomily predicted that "we are now in a downward spiral to depression."

He said the real problem facing American farmers is over-production.

"We must," he advised, "adjust our production to normal consumption and try to increase consumption by lowering costs through increased efficiency."

Goss declared the postwar needs of other countries have taken care of our surplus production until now, but foreign demands for our food have already started to decrease and will continue to decrease.

Cooley then spoke and said Federal support is to agriculture what social security is to labor.

"But for the support program, where would the cotton farmer be?" he asked. "Where would the tobacco farmer be? They'd be busted.

"Look at farming before the days of Federal Government aid. There were no flood control plans, no rural electrification program, no soil conservation service, no Credit Commodity Corporation."

Cooley warned that "if we pull the Government out from farming, down will come the house on our heads. We must continue our present high standard of living if only to pay our huge debt. We can't restrict our consumption to domestic consumption as suggested by Mr. Goss."

Last night's dinner, held in the Great Falls Grange Hall at Forrestville, was attended by about 75 Grange delegates from 10 States and six members of Congress.

The Grange leaders opened their conferences yesterday at the Roger Smith Hotel in Washington.

Compromise Plan Offered On Jerusalem

Lake Success, Jan. 6 (U.P.).—The man directing the United Nations effort to internationalize Jerusalem today revealed details of a compromise plan aimed at overcoming objections of Israel and Jordan.

Roger Garreau, of France, president of the Trusteeship Council, said he has suggested a formula whereby full U. N. sovereignty would be confined to a small section in the center of the city containing the main holy places.

Israel and Jordan would receive full soverignty over the remaining portions of the Jerusalem areas they now hold, but these regions would be neutralized, like Switzerland. Jerusalem would be set up as a free economic zone so economic life would not be disrupted by customs and police lines, and complete freedom of circulation throughout Jerusalem would be guaranteed.

Amnesia Victim War Veteran Was In Army Prison

Alice, Tex., Jan. 6 (U.P.).—The "mysterious stranger" was identified tonight from FBI fingerprints as Richard Ellis Boone, 28, Enola, Pa.

Telegraphed information from FBI headquarters in Washington indicated Boone had been sentenced in 1947 to the United States Disciplinary Barracks, New Cumberland, Pa., and later freed, Police Chief George Clegg said.

When Dr. P. Gordon Clare, an Alice chiropractor who befriended him, read the name "Richard Ellis Boone" to him, the young man appeared confused.

"It seems familiar," he said.

When Clegg started trying to reach authorities at New Cumberland Barracks, Boone appeared to be on the verge of breakdown.

$35,000 Awarded To Woman Hurt In Plane Accident

A Canadian woman was awarded $35,000 in Federal District Court, Alexandria, yesterday for injuries she received in the crack-up of a taxiing airplane at National Airport on June 22, 1948.

The sum was awarded to Mrs. Hazel Edmonds, of Ontario, by Judge Albert V. Bryan. She had sued for $85,000. Her daughter, Margaret, was awarded $1250, and the Rev. William J. Allen, 1717 R st. nw., was awarded $750.

The two women and Mr. Allen had sued the Federal Government and the Brinckerhoff Flying Service at the airport. In handing down his verdict, Judge Bryan dismissed the suit against the Government, absolving it of blame.

The complainants charged that a sightseeing plane of the flying service in which they were passengers overturned as it was preparing for takeoff.

Is There a 'Cure'?

Seven Ways Given to Balk Complex Toward Suicide

By Juliet Parker Filler

Copyright 1950, by United Features Syndicate, Inc.

Mrs. Filler is author of the book, "Female Hormones" and is the wife of a professor of gynecology and obstetrics at New York University.

Chapter Six

MANY suicides are preventable. There is no question about that.

There is a question as to how many can be prevented. Authorities disagree as to the effectiveness of a particular method of treatment. But there is complete agreement that suicide is a disease and it is preventable.

There are "vaccines" against it, as there are vaccines to prevent diphtheria or yellow fever.

Suicide is a disease to which no one is completely immune. The impulse toward self-destruction apears, sometime or other, in all of us.

The chief "vaccine" against it is the possession of a character or personality which can face realities of life, no matter how hard the going.

BUT HOW to achieve strong character or well-adjusted personality? How to fight the blues to which all of us are heir? These are questions which must be answered if we are to bear the stress and strain of life.

Here are seven authoritative answers. They were gathered from many sources.

Some were suggested by the Save-a-Life-League. Others were offered by phychiatrists, in personal interviews and in their writing. Some are to be found in such wise books of counsel as Dale Carnegie's "How to Stop Worrying and Start Living," Dr. Joshua Liebman's "Peace of Mind," and Harold Sherman's "Your Key to Happiness."

CLOSE family ties help to route suicide thoughts. They banish that feeling of aloneness which is characteristic of most unhappy people. If you are a parent, see that the children are wisely prepared for the birth of a new baby. Family jealousies and antogonisms which start in childhood can crop out, years later, in personality disorders. Be scrupulously fair to all your children, even if one seems "closer" to you than another.

In your husband-wife relationship, don't be afraid to meet your mate more than halfway. It is a sound psychological principle that outward evidence of devotion increases the emotion itself. Try it, and see for yourself.

A sense of morbid guilt over an incident changes nothing except you. It makes you neurotic.

The chances are that the jealousy, the hatred, the off-color episode you are ashamed of, are part of most people's emotional experience. That does not excuse them in you or in anybody else. But the truth is that all of us have emotions we're not proud of and sometimes do not control.

When you develop a deep sense of guilt, try to understand why you behaved as you did, or feel as you do. This can help you avoid repeating the experience or the emotion. If you can't do this yourself, and you are constantly worried, seek reliable counsel. A talk with a wise friend, a minister, a priest, or a doctor may be all that you need.

THE person whose work occupies his mind has no room left for worry. If you haven't a job, develop a hobby. Or learn something new. Or help other people. The world is so full of work to do and knowledge to acquire that none of us should ever complain about having too much idle time.

DURING wartime, you will remember, there were fewer suicides. It may be that people were too absorbed in world affairs to be concerned about themselves.

You have a family. You have friends. Up to now you may have been considering how they failed you. Try thinking about how you failed them. You'll be surprised at what you'll find if you start on the premise that you may be the one who is out of step.

SO YOU'RE not as beautiful as your sister. Your husband is not as successful as your neighbor's. Other men in the office are getting ahead while you're standing still. Those are the facts.

Consider whether anything can be done about changing the facts. If they cannot be changed, realize the folly of wasting a precious minute of life mooning over the irrevocable. Go on from there. You can be happy without personal beauty, without wealth, without what the world calls success.

Happiness depends on how you react to the circumstances of life, not on the circumstances themselves. If you can't believe that now, accept it on faith. You'll believe it after a while.

IF YOU can, join a church. If not, learn to pray. The poet Alfred Tennyson said, "more things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of." He was right. Prayer releases the tensions which worry creates. Merely putting into words the facts which bother you acts as a kind of spiritual cleansing. You feel better when you can pray. It does for the soul what a warm bath does for the body.

You must have faith that prayer can change circumstances. Fear is at the basis of much unhappiness. Faith, expressed through prayer, can rout fear.

THE idea that only the weak become emotionally upset is completely outdated.

Your emotions, pleasant and unpleasant, are not peculiar to you. They are common to all of us.

It is when unpleasant emotions exist for a long time and are neglected that they cause trouble.

If you are chronically unhappy, seek reliable advice. You would not deprive a pneumonia patient of penicillin. Or a diabetic of insulin.

The worries which lead to an impulse to suicide can also be cured.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Run Through That Once More, Slowly, Jay

Jay Aitch observes that "a chaperon is an elderly woman who accompanies young women to see they don't do any of the things the elderly woman would have done if she hadn't been chaperoned when she was a young woman."

LAW ENFORCEMENT BEGINS AT HOME

Parking space for official cars is provided on the 13½ st. side of the District Building.

But occasionally some cars park on the 14th st. side, parallel to the loading platform. This creates a one-lane bottleneck at this heavily traveled point.

The other day I saw a Buick parked there, and thought I recognized the uniformed chauffeur who was waiting in it.

But when I tried to trace the license number, I learned a whole series of things I never knew before.

I was told that the number I asked about is "unlisted." It's what is known as an "undercover" car.

Records regarding ownership are kept in a locked safe, the combination of which is known by only two trusted District employes. Undercover cars are authorized for such agencies as the Atomic Energy Commission, the FBI, the Secret Service and the White House. But it turned out that the number I asked about was "on the Commissioners' list."

Charles Stofberg, special assistant to Commissioner John Russell Young, explained that this list included about 75 secret numbers for detectives and inspectors in various District departments.

Surprisingly enough, secret numbers are also available to the Commissioners themselves. Commissioners Guy Mason and Gordon R. Young do not avail themselves of this prerogative.

But the District provides Commissioner John Russell Young not only with a car which carries License No. 1, but also with a second car, whose number is not made public.

Stofberg said he assumed this was "for reasons of security," but said that any statement would have to come from the Commissioners themselves.

Asked whether he ever had need for a secret license number in making personal inspections in line of duty, Commissioner John Russell Young said he couldn't recall any such instance. But he explained that many tourists assume that license No. 1 is the President's, so there's some degree of annoyance from curiosity seekers.

It would appear that this annoyance could be eliminated rather simply, by putting an ordinary license number on the Commissioner's car—or even on both his cars, if he needs two.

At any rate, getting back to the "undercover" Buick which was blocking traffic on 14th st., I might suggest that if its license holder really wants to keep it inconspicuous, he ought to instruct the chauffeur not to park it alongside loading platforms.

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK.—On the promenade deck of the Queen Elizabeth last week, the homecoming delegates to the labor conference in England saw their colleague, David Dubinsky, head of the ILGWU, strolling with the Duke of Windsor. Matthew Woll, vice president of the AFL, said: "Dubinsky is probably offering the duke the job of impartial chairman of the garment industry."

Representative Adam Powell, who helped organize and was chaplain to the Negro Actors Guild, is organizing a Joint Actors Council to unite the Catholic, Jewish and Negro Actors Guilds . . . COMPO, the new Committee of Motion Picture Organizations, formed to coordinate the programs of all the companies, exhibitors, unions, trade press, etc., had over 20 representatives at its first meeting. Most of them are suing each other—exhibitors vs. producers, unions vs. movie companies, etc.

Nunnally Johnson, the producer, listened to movie men discussing ways of getting people off the streets and into movie theaters. "Show the movies in the streets," Johnson advised. "That'll chase 'em into the theaters" . . . Jack Kirkland is planning a tour of his "Tobacco Road" with an all-Negro cast.

GOP Chiefs Weigh Party's Prospects

By Drew Pearson

For Republican ears only, Senator Taft gloomily predicted that the GOP will not recapture Congress this November, and as a result the issue of the "social state" won't be decided until the 1952 presidential election.

SENATOR TAFT

Talking shop with GOP Senators behind closed doors, Taft solemnly added that he himself didn't care to come back to the Senate "if the Republican membership is decreased."

Taft took the floor after colleagues hailed his reelection as the most important to the Republican cause. New Hampshire's tart-tongued Senator Charles Tobey almost turned the meeting into a Taft rally with an emotional speech.

"The most important thing to the Senate and the country is to reelect a man who has had guts to vote how he stood," rang out Tobey, who disagrees with Taft as often as any Republican in the Senate.

Tobey even offered to "talk to some of the people of Ohio—some of the humble people."

"All the people of Ohio are humble," chirped Taft's junior colleague from Ohio, "Handsome John" Bricker.

Taft then stood up and told applauding Senators: "I don't want to come back if the Republican membership is decreased. I want to see all of you come back who are here now—and a few more. I don't expect the Republicans to get a majority in November, but the important thing is to win some gains. The whole issue of the social state won't be settled anyhow until 1952."

Bare GOP Cupboard

Main issue of the GOP senatorial meeting was whether to draft a statement of GOP "aims and purposes" for the 1950 campaign. Opinion on this was by no means unanimous. Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, jr., astute Massachusetts blueblood, spoke for the majority when he reluctantly agreed to a statement of GOP aims. Normally he would be against such a statement at this time, he said, since both parties set down their aims in the 1948 platforms.

"But in view of all the publicity," Lodge argued, "if we don't restate our aims, it might look as if we didn't want to."

Lodge also pointed out that contributions had stopped flowing into the GOP campaign chest and suggested that a statement of aims might increase the flow.

But Colorado's Senator Eugene Millikin shook his bald and shiny head.

"If you have a statement of aims to please not the little contributors, but the big contributors," he warned, "it would take us back not to the ox-cart age but to the antediluvian age."

In the end, the conference agreed to appoint a committee to help draft a new GOP statement. This brought two Senators to their feet to announce they would refuse to serve on the committee. They were Senators Wayne Morse of Oregon and Bourke Hickenlooper of Iowa, who said they preferred to run on their own records.

It was clear that the 1950 campaign was on.

Note—There was one new voice at the GOP Senators' conference. He was newly appointed Senator Harry Darby of Kansas, who recited a short statement that he would try to measure up to the standards set by his fellow Senators.

"You'll have to do better than that," boomed Senator Vandenberg merrily.

... with Pat Parker

LET US tell you about some of the unusual stands at Center Market City. Did you know that you can find delicacies from almost every country in the world at this fascinating acre of fine foods at 5th & K, N.W.?

Like Pizza. You can find ready-prepared pizza dough, snails from North Africa, little red Italian onions, dozens of kinds of spaghetti and macaroni, wonderful Provolone, and Garganzola cheese — to say nothing of those big Italian ripe olives and a delectable olive salad at Harry Angelico's stand.

Harry is the son of a renowned former Waldorf-Astoria chef, and a famous chef in his own right. It's nothing to find him, little black beret and all, perched back of his counter whipping up some Italian delicacy for a special party. His chestnut soup, for instance. Or the dishes for a magnificent Antipasto.

If it's Italian food you're after, Angelico's is the spot for you.

IF YOU delight in East Indian curries and dishes using freshly grated cocoanut, John Heitmuller's stand, near the K-street entrance, has this cocoanut for you. The Siamese Embassy is one of his biggest customers, so you know his cocoanut has a true Eastern flavor.

Incidentally, this stand is also famous for its horseradish. John grinds this fresh daily. Most of the horseradish comes from around St. Louis now, altho John remembers when it grew right around Washington.

LAST WEEK we told you about the Greek delicacies at Variety Sales Co., and the Kosher foods to be found at George's Delicatessen. Greek pastries are available at Katina's, and Hungarian pastries can be found at the Cakemaster stand.

LIKE PEARL TAPIOCA — that wonderful, big variety that comes from South America? You can find that in the Market at Johnson & Lancaster's. This stand does a steady business in this tapioca, and it is one of the very few places in Washington that you can find this type of tapioca.

NAEHLE'S, over near Variety Sales Co. in the back of the Market, specializes in Scandanavian fish foods. Lutfisk can be found here, as can all sorts of specialized fish. You can find real Potomac roe herring here, too, and this stand is very popular for this product.

Almost every cut of meat under the sun can be found at Center Market City. All you need do is ask your butcher for it. And the ingredients for a curry dinner, for a Chinese dinner, for a Spanish, French or German dinner—all can be found at the Market.
